INDIA-DUTCH

The Netherlands, operating as the United East India Company of the Netherlands, were the real successors to the Portuguese in India. They maintained a number of thriving establishments on the subcontinent until 1795, when Robert Clive, founder of the empire of British India, completed Britain's conquest of Bengal. Thereafter the Dutch holdings were gradually ceded to Britain, the most important to numismatics being Cochin, ceded in 1814; Negapatnam, ceded in 1784; Pulicat, ceded in 1824; and Tuticorin, ceded in 1795.

MINTS

Cochin

Cochin, which is located on the west coast in South India, was acquired from Portugal in 1663. Even though the British occupied it in 1795 it wasn't ceded to them until 1814. Later issues are referenced with Indian Princely States - Cochin.

Jagganthapur

Masulipatnam

A Dutch trading station since 1605AD. The gold coins were struck on the old South Indian standards, mainly to pay the rent to the local ruler. Taken over by the French in 1751AD.

Negapatnam

Taken from the Portuguese in 1658AD. Mint right established in 1662. VOC - head-office of the Coromandel (Southeast Indian coast) from 1690AD to the British takeover in 1784AD.

Pulicat

VOC head office of the Coromandel (South East Indian coast) from its establishment in 1610-1690 and after 1784. Fortress Gelria was the first company mint in India. It was a British possession from 1781-1784, 1795-1818 and finally ceded to Great Britain in 1824.

INDIA-PORTUGUESE

Vasco da Gama, the Portuguese explorer, first visited India in 1498. Portugal seized control of a number of islands and small enclaves on the west coast of India, and for the next hundred years enjoyed a monopoly on trade. With the arrival of powerful Dutch and English fleets in the first half of the 17th century, Portuguese power in the area declined until virtually all of India that remained under Portuguese control were the west coast enclaves of Goa, Damao and Diu. They were forcibly annexed by India in 1962.

RULER

Portuguese, until 1961

DENOMINATION

The denomination of most copper coins appears in numerals on the reverse, though 30 Reis is often given as "1/2 T", and 60 Reis as "T" (T = Tanga). The silver coins have the denomination in words, usually on the obverse until 1850, then on the reverse.

BACAIM

(Bessein)

Located less than 30 miles north of Bombay on the Gulf of Cambay. In 1611 the Portuguese opened a mint at Bacaim. The greatest minting activity was between 1678 and 1697. Many issues for Bacaim were in conjunction with other Portuguese settlements. The British took Bacaim in 1780.

DAMAO

(Daman)

A city located 100 miles north of Bombay. It was captured by the Portuguese in 1559. A mint was opened in Damao in 1611. This mint continued in operation until 1854. While important to early Portuguese trade, Damao dwindled as time passed. It was annexed to India in 1962.

DIU

A district in Western India formerly belonging to Portugal. It is 170 miles northwest of Bombay on the Kathiawar peninsula. The Portuguese settled here and built a fort in 1535. A mint was opened in 1685 and was closed in 1859. As with Damao, the importance of Diu diminished with the passage of time. It was annexed to India in 1962.

GOA

Goa was the capitol of Portuguese India and is located 250 miles south of Bombay on the west coast of India. It was taken by Albuquerque in 1510. A mint was established immediately and operated until closed by the British in 1869. Later coins were struck at Calcutta and Bombay. Goa was annexed by India in 1962.

MONETARY SYSTEM
375 Bazarucos = 300 Reis
240 Reis = 1 Pardao
2 Xerafim = 1 Rupia

NOTE: The silver Xerafim was equal to the silver Pardao, but the gold Xerafim varied according to fluctuations in the gold/silver ratio.

INDIA - BRITISH

The civilization of India, which began about 2500 B.C., flourished under a succession of empires - notably those of the Mauryas, the Kushans, the Guptas, the Delhi Sultans and the Mughals – until undermined in the 18th and 19th centuries by European colonial powers.

The Portuguese were the first to arrive, off Calicut in May 1498. It wasn't until 1612, after the Portuguese and Spanish power had begun to wane, that the British East India Company established its initial settlement at Surat. Britain could not have chosen a more propitious time as the central girdle of petty states, and the southern Vijayanagar Empire were crumbling and ripe for foreign exploitation. By the end of the century, English traders were firmly established in Bombay, Madras, Calcutta and lesser places elsewhere, and Britain was implementing its announced policy to create such civil and military institutions as may be the foundation of secure English domination for all time'. By 1757, following the successful conclusion of a war of colonial rivalry with France during which the military victories of Robert Clive, a young officer with the British East India Company, made him a powerful man in India, the British were firmly settled in India not only as traders but as conquerors. During the next 60 years, the British East India Company acquired dominion over most of India by bribery and force, and governed it directly or through puppet princelings.

As a result of the Sepoy Mutiny of 1857-58, a large scale mutiny among Indian soldiers of the Bengal army, control of the government of India was transferred from the East India Company to the British Crown. At this point in world history, India was the brightest jewel in the British imperial diadem, but even then a movement for greater Indian representation in government presaged the Indian Empire's twilight hour less than a century later - it would pass into history on Aug. 15, 1947.

BENGAL PRESIDENCY

East India Company
(Until 1835)

In 1633 a group of 8 Englishmen obtained a permit to trade in Bengal from the Nawab of Orissa. Shortly thereafter trading factories were established at Balasore and Hariharpur. Although greater trading privileges were granted to the East India Company by the Emperor Shah Jahan in 1634, by 1642 the 2 original factories were abandoned.

In 1651, through an English surgeon named Broughton, a permit was acquired to trade at Bengal. Hugli was the first location, followed by Kasimbazar, Balasore and Patna (the last 3 in 1653). Calcutta became of increasing importance in this area and on December 20, 1699 Calcutta was declared a presidency and renamed Fort William.

During these times there were many conflicts with the Nawab, both diplomatic and military, and the ultimate outcome was the intervention of Clive and the restoration of Calcutta as an important trading center.

During the earlier trading times in Bengal most of the monies used were imported rupees from the Madras factory. These were primarily of the Arcot type. After Clive's victory one of the concessions in the peace treaty was the right to make Mughal type coinage. The Nawab gave specific details as to what form the coinage should take.

In 1765 Emperor Shah Alam gave the East India Company possessions in Bengal, Orissa and Bihar. This made the company nominally responsible only to the Emperor.

In 1777 the "Frozen Year 19" (of Shah Alam) rupees were made at Calcutta and were continued until 1835. The Arcot rupees were discontinued at Calcutta about 1777.

BOMBAY PRESIDENCY

Following a naval victory over the Portuguese on December 24, 1612 negotiations were started that developed into the opening of the first East India Company factory in Surat in 1613. Silver coins for the New World as well as various other foreign coins were used in early trade. Within the decade the Mughal mint at Surat was melting all of these foreign coins and re-minting them as various denominations of Mughal coinage.

Bombay became an English holding as part of the dowry of Catherine of Braganza, Princess of Portugal when she was betrothed to Charles II of England. Also included in the dowry was Tangier and $500,000. With this acquisition the trading center of the Indian West Coast moved from Surat to Bombay.

Possession of Bombay Island took place on February 8, 1665 and by 1672 the East India Company had a mint in Bombay to serve their trading interests. European designed coins were struck here until 1717. Experimental issues of Mughal style rupees with regnal years pertaining to the reigns of James II and William and Mary were made in 1693-94.

From 1717 to 1778 the Mughal style Bombay rupee was the principal coin of the West India trade, although bulk foreign coins were used for striking rupees at Surat.

After the East India Company took over the city of Surat in 1800 they slowed the mint production and finally transferred all activity to Bombay in 1815.

MADRAS PRESIDENCY

English trade was begun on the east coast of India in 1611. The first factory was at Mazulipatam and was maintained intermittently until modern times.

Madras was founded in 1639 and Fort St. George was made the chief factory on the east coast in 1641. A mint was established at Fort St. George where coins of the style of Vijayanagar were struck.

The Madras mint began minting copper coins after the renovation. In 1689 silver fanams were authorized to be struck by the new Board of Directors.

In 1692 the Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb gave permission for Mughal type rupees to be struck at Madras. These circulated locally and were also sent to Bengal. The chief competition for the Madras coins were the Arcot rupees. Some of the bulk coins from Madras were sent to the Nawabs mint to be made into Arcot rupees.

In 1742 the East India Company applied for and received permission to make their own Arcot rupees. Coining operations ceased in Madras in 1869.

IRAN

The Islamic Republic of Iran, located between the Caspian Sea and the Persian Gulf in southwestern Asia, has an area of 636,296 sq. mi. (1,648,000 sq. km.) and a population of 40 million. Capital: Tehran. Although predominantly an agricultural state, Iran depends heavily on oil for foreign exchange. Crude oil, carpets and agricultural products are exported.

Iran (historically known as Persia until 1931AD) is one of the world's most ancient and resilient nations. Strategically astride the lower land gate to Asia, it has been conqueror and conquered, sovereign nation and vassal state, ever emerging from its periods of glory or travail with its culture and political individuality intact. Iran (Persia) was a powerful empire under Cyrus the Great (600-529 B.C.), its borders extending from the Indus to the Nile. It has also been conquered by the predatory empires of antique and recent times - Assyrian, Medean, Macedonian, Seljuq, Turk, Mongol - and more recently been coveted by Russia, the Third Reich and Great Britain. Revolts against the absolute power of the Persian shahs resulted in the establishment of a constitutional monarchy in1906.

With 4,000 troops, Reza Khan marched on the capital arriving in Tehran in the early morning of Feb. 22,1921. The government was taken over with hardly a shot and Zia ad-Din was set up as premier, but the real power was with Reza Khan, although he was officially only the minister of war. In 1923, Reza Khan appointed himself prime minister and summoned the "majlis." Who eventually gave him military powers and he became independent of the shah's authority. In 1925 Reza Khan Pahlavi was elected Shah of Persia. A few weeks later his eldest son, Shahpur Mohammed Reza was appointed Crown Prince and was crowned on April 25, 1926.

In 1931 the Kingdom of Persia became known as the Kingdom of Iran. In 1979 the monarchy was toppled and an Islamic Republic proclaimed.

MONETARY SYSTEM

1797-98 (AH 1211-12)

50 Dinars = 1 Shahi
15 Shahis = 1 Rupee (?)
12 Rupees and 2 Shahis = 1 Toman
200 Dinars = 1 Abbasi

NOTE: The Shahi was a fixed unit, first coined in AD1501, equal to 50 Dinars. The Toman, introduced as a unit of account about AH1240 (1824AD), was always fixed at 10,000 Dinars. The value of the Rupee for this period is not known with certainty.

1798-1825 (AH 1212-1241)

1250 Dinars = 1 Riyal
8 Riyals = 1 Toman

SILVER and GOLD COINAGE

The precious metal monetary system of Qajar Persia prior to the reforms of 1878 was the direct descendant of the Mongol system introduced by Ghazan Mahmud in 1297AD, and was the last example of a medieval Islamic coinage. It is not a modern system, and cannot be understood as such. It is not possible to list types, dates, and mints as for other countries, both because of the nature of the coinage, and because very little research has been done on the series. The following comments should help elucidate its nature.

STANDARDS: The weight of the primary silver and gold coins was set by law and was expressed in terms of the Mesqal (about 4.61 g) and the Nokhod (24 Nokhod = 1 Mesqal). The primary silver coin was the Rupee from AH1211-1212, the Riyal from AH1212-1241, and the Gheran from AH1241-1344. The standard gold coin was the Toman. Currently the price of gold is quoted in Mesqals.

DENOMINATIONS: In addition to the primary denominations, noted in the last paragraph, fractional pieces were coined, valued at one-eighth, one-fourth, and one-half the primary denomination, usually in much smaller quantities. These were ordinarily struck from the same dies as the larger pieces, sometimes on broad, thin flans, sometimes on thick, dumpy flans. On the smaller coins, the denomination can best be determined only by weighing the coin. The denomination is almost never expressed on the coin!

DEVALUATIONS: From time to time, the standard for silver and gold was reduced, and the old coin recalled and replaced with lighter coin, the difference going to the government coffers. The effect was that of a devaluation of the primary silver and gold coins, or inversely regarded, an increase in the price of silver and gold. The durations of each standard varied from about 2 to 20 years. The standards are given for each ruler, as the denomination can only be determined when the standard is known.

LIGHTWEIGHT AND ALLOYED PIECES: Most of the smaller denomination coins were issued at lighter weights than those prescribed by law, with the difference going to the pockets of the mintmasters. Other mints, notably Hamadan, added excessive amounts of alloy to the coins, and some mintmasters lost their heads as a result. Discrepancies in weight of as much as 15 percent and more are observed, with the result that it is often quite impossible to determine the denomination of a coin!

OVERSIZE COINS: Occasionally, multiples of the primary denominations were produced, usually on special occasions for presentation by the Shah to his favorites. These coins' did not circulate (except as bullion), and were usually worn as ornaments. They were the NCLT's' of their day.

MINTS & EPITHETS: Qajar coinage was struck at 34 mints (plus at least a dozen others striking only copper Falus), which are listed previously, with drawings of the mint names in Persian, as they appear on the coins. However, the Persian script admits of infinite variation and stylistic whimsy, so the forms given are only guides, and not absolute. Only a knowledge of the script will assure correct reading. In addition to the city name, most mint names were given identifying epithets, which occasionally appear in lieu of the mint name, particularly at Iravan and Mashhad.

TYPES: There were no types in the modern sense, but the arrangement of the legends and the ornamental borders were frequently changed. These changes do not coincide with changes in standards, and cannot be used to determine the mint, which must be found by actually reading the reverse inscriptions. The following listings are arranged first by ruler, with various standards explained. Then, the coins are listed by denomination within each reign. For each denomination, one or more pieces, when available, are illustrated, with the mint and date noted beneath each photo. For each type, a date range is given, but this range indicates the years during which the particular type was current, and does not imply that every year of the interval is known on actual coins. Because dates were carelessly engraved, and old dies were used until they wore out or broke, we occasionally find coins of a particular type dated before or after the indicated interval. Such coins command no premium. No attempt has been made to determine which mints actually exist for which types.

Husayn I

AH1105-1135 / 1694-1722AD

Husayn, son of Sulayman I, was enthroned on 14 Dhu'l-Hijja 1105 (August 6, 1694), and abdicated under pressure from the Afghan invaders on 11 Muharram 1135 (October 23, 1722). He was murdered by his Afghan mentors in AH1142 (1729AD). He is sometimes known as Husayn I, to distinguish him from a pretender who set himself up in the mid-18th century, but struck no coins.

Silver types for this reign:

A. Obverse couplet, zad za toufiq-e haqq be-chehre-ye zar / seeke-ye soltan Hosein-e din-parvar, "Upon the face of precious metal, by the grace of God, was imprinted the stamp of Sultan Husayn, the nurturer of the religion". Used AH1105-1107 only. Struck to the 1925 nokhod standard in use since AH1054.

B. Obverse couplet, gasht saheb-e sekke az toufiq-e rab ol-mashreqein / dar jahan kalb-e amir ol-mo'menin soltan Hosayn, "In this world, the dog of the commander of the believers (i.e., Ali ibn Abi Talib), Sultan Husayn, became master of the die, by the grace of the Lord of the Two Easts". Used AH1107-1123.

NOTE: Because the mint is normal at the bottom of the die and the date near the top, specimens with date and mint of Types A and B are relatively scarce, especially for the smaller denominations.

C. Obverse, mint and date, plus the formula bande-ye shah-e velayat Hosein (cf. Type D of Abbas I). Struck to the standard of 1800 nokhod (abbasi = 6.91 g).

D. As Type C, but to the standard of 1400 nokhod (abbasi = 5.34 g). During the siege of Isfahan, in AH1134 (1721-22AD), the Isfahan abbasi was reduced to the 1200 nokhod standard (abbasi = 4.61 g). The 1400 standard was retained at all other mints.

E. Obverse, mint and date, plus the formula kalb-e astan-e Ali Hosein, "Husayn, the dog on the doorstep of Ali". Used only at Mashhad. Struck in AH1123 to the 1800 nokhod standard and from AH1130-1137 to the 1400 standard. Issues of AH1135-1137 were orderd by Shah Mahmud Sistani, who later in AH1137-1138, struck coins in his own name.

As in the previous reign, there are a great variety of presentation pieces, few of which have been published. Only a small number are listed here. Most are extremely rare.

Shah Mahmud
AH1135-1137 / 1722-1725AD

Types for this reign:

A. Couplet obverse, with mint & date. Reverse has the Sunni Kalima.

Sekkeh zad as mashreq-e Iran cho qors-e aftab Shah Mahmud-e Jahangir-e siyadat-ansab.

"From the east of Iran, Shah Mahmud, the world- conqueror of Sayyid descent, has struck coin like (i.e., as brilliant as) the solar disk."

B. As type A, but a different couplet:

Foru ravad be-zamin mah o aftab-e monir za reshk-e sekkeye Mahmud Shah-e alamgir.

"The moon and the shining sun shall set, out of envy of the coin of Mahmud Shah the world conqueror."

C. As type A, but a different couplet:

Cho mehr o mah zar-e shahanshahi mahmud-e alam shod keh naqd-e qalbash az feyz-e Khoda az ghash mossalam shod.

"Like the sun and the moon, the imperial precious metal is praised throughout the world, for the currency of his (Mahmud's) heart has, by the benevolence of God, been cleansed of impurity." (There are numerous puns in this distich that do not survive translation).

D. As type A, but different couplet:

Din-e Haqqra sekkeh bar zar kard az hokm-e Elah Aqebat Mahmud bashad Padshah-e din-e Khoda.

"At God's command, he struck coin in precious metal for the sake of the True Religion. In the end, Mahmud shall be king in accordance with God's Religion." The second part may also be translated, "In the end, the King of the Religion of God (i.e., Ali ibn Abi Talib) shall be praised," meaning that the Shiite sect shall ultimately prevail. The use of puns and word plays in Persian poetry is renowned. As a result, most of the elegance and humor of such verse is lost in translation.

E. As type A, but only a half-couplet, still only tentatively read:

Be Mahmud-e arshad dad Khoda Shahi.

"To Mahmud, the Elder, did God grant kingship." There appears to be one additional word, still not deciphered, in this text.

Ashraf
AH1137-1142 / 1725-1729AD

Types for this reign:
A. Obverse couplet, with mint below. Reverse, Sunni Kalima, together with date.

Be-Ashrafi athar-e nam-e anjenab rasid Sharaf za sekke-ye Ashraf bar aftab rasid.

"As the name of that noble person (Ashraf) was traced upon the ashrafi (coin), from the coin of Ashraf, (his) honor surpassed (that of) the sun".

B. Similar to type A, but a different couplet:

Khor o mah chun tala o noqreh az feyzash monavvar shod Sharaf bar aftab az name-e Ashraf sekkeh bar zar shod.

"The sun and moon, like gold and silver, were illuminated by his (Ashraf's) generosity. From the name Ashraf, coin in precious metal gained honor above (that of) the sun.

C. Similar to type A, but different couplet. The accessional year 1137 is normally added to the reverse, with the actual year of issue appearing on the obverse.

Az altaf-e Shah Ashraf-e haqq-shenas be-zar naqsh shod sekke-ye Char Yar.

"Courtesy of the rights-respecting Shah Ashraf, the coin of the Four Friends was struck in precious metal." The Four Friends are the four caliphs who followed the death of the Prophet Muhammad, who are honored by Sunnis in their sectarian opposition to the Shiites. This difficult couplet contains numerous untranslatable puns.

D. Obverse couplet, with date below. Reverse, short inscription as on the Mughal coinage, including the mint, its epithetical designation, and the accessional date of Shah Ashraf. Obverse couplet:

Dast-zad bar jalalaho bovad gonah Dad-e Taghyir-e sekke-ye Ashraf Shah.

"The crime of counterfeiting the coin of Ashraf Shah would be (tantamount to) an offence the Glorious." The last part could equally well be translated as "an attack against his glory," either the Glory of God or the glory of Ashraf Shah. All these meanings are intended in the Persian text. Still other puns can be found in this distich. The reverse inscription is:

Jolus-e meymanat-ma nus-e Dar os-Saltanat Isfahan 1137.

"1137, (year of) the auspicious enthronement, at the Abode of the Sultanate, Isfahan".

Nadir Shah
AH1142-1148 / 1729-1735AD

As viceroy in the eastern provinces.

Nadir Shah was the commanding general and engineer of the defeat of the Afghans under Shah Ashraf at Isfahan in AH1142/1729. He was granted autonomy in Khorasan in reward for that service. Other provinces were later added to his viceregency.

There is only one type, with the following couplet on the obverse, the Shiite formula on the reverse.

Az Khorasan sekkeh bar zar shod be-toufiq-e Khoda Nosrat o emdad-e Shah-e Din Ali-ye Musa Reza.

"From Khorasan, the coin of precious metal became, by the grace of God, succor and reinforcements for the King of the Religion, Ali, son of Musa, (known as) Reza."

The reference is to the 8th Imam of the Twelver sect of Shiites.

AH1145-1148 / 1732-1736AD

There is only one type for this reign, bearing the following couplet:

Sekkeh bar zar zad be-toufiq-e elahi dar jahan Zell-e Haqq Abbas-e thaleth thani sahebqeran.

"The shadow of God (on earth), Abbas the Third, the second Sahebqeran, struck coin in precious metal in the world, by divine grace." Sahebqeran is an astrological term referring to a person born under certain conjunctions and was originally assumed by the Mongol conqueror Tamerlane in the 14th century. Shah Abbas III, who was a child and the puppet of the leading general (the future Nadir Shah), was hardly a conqueror by any stretch of the imagination. The title of "shadow of God on earth" was commonly adopted.

Nadir Shah
AH1148-1160 / 1736-1747AD

Types for this reign:

A. (Toughra type) Couplet on obverse, as below, sometimes, with mint & date. Reverse chronogram in the form of a toughra, usually with the date below, and with mint when mint not on obverse.

Sekkeh bar zar kard nam-e saltanat-ra dar jahan Nader-e Iran-zamin o Khosrov-e Giti-setan.

"The Nadir of the land of Iran, the Caesar who seizes the world, coin in precious metal broadcast the name of this sultanate (throughout) the world." Nadir means "rare" "unparalleled," whence the pun. The reverse chronogram, in Arabic, is as follows:

Be-tarikh-e al-khayr fi ma waqa.

"In the year, what has happened is good." According to the abjad system of date reckoning, the total values of the letters in this expression 1148.

B. (Julus type). Obverse couplet as type A, with mint and date below. Reverse has the same chronogram, not in the form of a toughra, within a circular border, with several additional words:

Tarikh-e jolus-e meymanat-ma'nus-e al-khayr fi ma waqa'.

"In the year of the auspicious enthronement, 'what has happened good." The year AH1148 is often cited on the reverse, with the actual date of issue on the obverse.

C. Obverse al-soltan Nader and reverse the benediction khalad Allah mulkahu.

"May God prolong his kingship," together with mint and date.

D.1 Couplet obverse, with the same reverse as type C (usually without the benediction).

Hast Soltan bar salatin-e jahan Shah-e Shahan Nader-e sahebqeran.

"The shah of shahs, Nadir, the sahebqeran, is sultan over the sultans of the world."

D.2 Same as D.1 but with benediction khalad Allah mulkahu added to reverse (used only in Afghanistan and India).

E. Inscriptional obverse. Reverse as Type F. Sekke-ye mobarak-e padshah-e ghazi Nader Shah, Fortunate coin of the victorious shah Nader shah.

F. couplet obverse. Reverse as the standard julus reverse of the 18th century of the Mughal Empire, with mint and regnal year. Dadeh zib-e tazeh-ye ru bar mehr o mah / as sekke-ye Nader Shah-e giti-panah, Given beauth fresh of face on the sun and moon, By the die of Nadir Shah, the asylum of the World.

Shahrukh, Viceroy at Herat
AH1151-1160 / 1739-1747AD

Type for this ruler:

A. Couplet, divided on the two faces of the coin, with the date added to obverse or reverse field.

Amr shod az shah-e shahan Nader-e Sahebqeran Sekke yabad az Harat az Shahrokh nam o neshan.

"It was ordered by the king of kings, Nadir, the Sahebqiran, that the coin of Herat should bear the name and sign of Shahrukh."

Sam Mirza
AH1160 / 1747AD

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse title and name of the ruler, Bande-ye shah-e velayat Sam ebn-e Soltan Hoseyn, plus mint and date. Reverse, Shiite formula.

B. Obverse couplet. Reverse, the Shiite formula in central circle, the names of the 12 Imams around.

Sekkeh zad bar zar be-giti chun tolu-e neyreyn Vareth-e molk-e Soleyman Sam ebn-e Soltan Hoseyn.

"Heir to the kingdom of Solomon, Sam, son of Sultan, Husayn, has struck coin in precious metal in the world, like the rise of the two brilliances (i.e., the sun and the moon)."

Adel Shah (Ali)
AH1160-1161 / 1747-1748AD

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse short couplet, as below, with mint below, and date, if any, somewhere in the field. Reverse, the Shiite formula, sometimes with the names of the 12 Imams in a surrounding marginal legend.

Gasht rayej be-hokm-e Lam-Yazli Sekke-ye Saltanat be-nam-e Ali.

"By the order of the Eternal One, the coin of the sultanate has become current in the name of Ali." Ali was another name of Adel Shah.

On some examples, the word be-hokm-e is replaced by be-amr-e, with the same meaning.

B. Obverse long couplet, with mint and date below. Reverse, the Shiite formula.

Za ba'd-e dorr-e douran-e edalat sekke bar zar shod Be-nam-e shah-e din Soltan Ali alam monavvar shod.

"After the pearl of the age of justice (i.e., Nadir Shah), coin was struck in precious metal. In the name of the king of the faith, Sultan Ali, the world was illuminated." This difficult passage is replete with wordplays lost in translation. Sultan Ali here refers simultaneously to Adel Shah himself, to Ali ibn Abi Talib, and to the eighth Shiite Imam (to whom the evocation on type C).

C. Obverse evocation of the eighth Imam, Ya 'Ali ebn-e Musa al-Reza, O Ali, son of Musa, al-Reza." Reverse as type A. Type C is anonymous, and many have been struck largely during the interregnum of a couple months that followed the overthrow of Adel Shah.

Shahrukh, King of Iran
AH1161-1163 / 1748-1749AD

Type for this ruler's 1st reign:

B. Obverse, couplet as below. Reverse mint and date, usually with the mint epithet as well.

Sekke zad dar jahan be-hokm-e Khoda Shahrokh kalb-e astan-e Reza.

"Shahrukh, the dog at the doorstep of Reza, struck coin in the world by God's command". The reference to the "dog" is self-effacing, and refers to the idea that Shahrukh is devoted to Reza, the eighth Imam, whose tomb is at Mashhad, Shahrukh's capital. This type was struck at various northwestern mints as late as AH1170.

C. Obverse, the name al-Sultan Shahrokh. Reverse, the benediction, mint and date, as on Nadir Shah's type C.

Shah Isma'il III
AH1163-1169 / 1750-1756AD

Types for this ruler's 3rd Reign:

E. As B, but a different couplet. Struck only at Mashhad.

Sekkeh zad az sa'y-e nader-e thani sahebqeran. Kalb-e soltan-e Khorasan Shahrokh shah-e jahan.

"The dog of the sultan of Khorasan (i.e., the 8th Imam), Shahrukh, king of the world, has struck coin, by the efforts of Nadir, the second Sahebqiran." However, the puns and word plays enable various nuances of meaning that cannot be captured in translation.

F. Unread couplet obverse. Reverse as type E.

Azad Khan
AH1163-1170 / 1750-1757AD

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse couplet. Reverse, mint & date, usually with the mint epithet.

Ta ke azad dar jahan bashad Sekke-ye Saheb Zaman bashad.

"So long as Azad is in the world, there shall be the coin of the Master of Time." The Master of Time, Saheb, oz-Zaman, refers to the 12th Imam, who is believed to have disappeared in the 9th century, and will reappear as the Messiah at the end of time.

B. Same obverse couplet, with mint & date below. Reverse, the Sunni kalima.

C. Obverse couplet. Reverse, mint & date, usually with the mint epithet.

Ta zar o sim dar jahan bashad Sekke-ye Saheb oz-Zaman bashad.

"So long as gold and silver are in the world, there shall be the coin of the Master of Time." Note that there is no reference to Azad by name in this couplet.

D. Same obverse as C, but mint & date below obverse. Reverse, Shiite formula, with the names of the 12 Imams. Used at Qazvin only.

E. Obverse, Ya Saheb oz-Zaman, "O Master of Time." Reverse, mint and date, with mint epithet. Used only for the shahi.

F. Obverse, Udrikni ya Saheb oz-Zaman, "Give me succor, O Master of Time." Reverse, mint, date, and mint epithet. Used only for the shahi.

G. Obverse couplet, mint and date below. Reverse Shiite formula (?).

Sim o zar anche dar jahan bashad Sekke-ye Saheb oz-Zaman bashad.

"Whatever silver and gold is in the world, shall be (minted into) the coin of the Master of Time." The attribution of this type to Azad Khan is tentative. Used only at Kirman.

H. Obverse, the Sunni Kalima. Reverse, Ya saheb oz-zaman above date and mint.

Muhammad Hasan Khan
AH1163-1172 / 1750-1759AD

Until AH1168, his coins are in the name of Isma'il III, and are listed under that ruler; from AH1168-1172, he struck anonymous coinage.

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse couplet, with mint and date. Reverse, the Shiite formula, usually within a small central cartouche surrounded by a broad blank margin.

Be-zar sekkeh az meymanat zad qaza Be-nam-e 'Ali ebn-e Musa or-Reza.

"Fate has auspiciously struck coin in precious metal, in the name of Ali Reza, son of Musa, (i.e., the 8th Imam)".

B. Obverse evocation of the 8th Imam, Ya 'Ali ebn-e Musa or-Reza. Reverse, mint. Date usually on obverse. Used for the shahi only.

C. Obverse couplet, with mint and date. Reverse as type A.

Shod za yomn-e din-e haqq rayej be-toufiq-e Khoda Sekke-ye eqbal bar nam-e 'Ali ebn-e Musa ar-Reza.

"Because of the flourishing of the true religion, the coin of prosperity has become current, by God's grace, in the name of Ali Reza, son of Musa."

Karim Khan

AH1166-1193 / 1753-1779AD

All coinage of this ruler is, strictly speaking, anonymous. Most is identified by the evocation Ya Karim, which may be translated either as "O Karim" or as "O Generous One," Karim being one of the many names of God. In the type descriptions, this phrase is noted as the ruler's evocation.

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse couplet, with mint below, date somewhere in field. Reverse, the Shiite formula.

Shod aftab o mah zar o sim dar jahan Az sekke-ye Emam be-haqq Saheb oz-Zaman

"The sun and moon have become gold and silver throughout the world, from the coin of the Imam, indeed the Master of Time."

B. Same obverse couplet, but without mint. Reverse, mint and date, usually with epithet, usually in ornamental cartouche in larger field. The date may appear on either obverse or reverse, more frequently on reverse.

B*. As type B, but the ruler's evocation Ya Karim added to the obverse field in miniscule letters.

C. As type B, but the ruler's evocation is added at the top of the reverse, above the mint and date. The date may appear on obverse, on reverse, on both faces, or twice on the reverse.

D. Obverse, the Shiite formula. Reverse, mint, date, and ruler's evocation as on type C.

E. Obverse as type B. Reverse, mint and date, with epithet, in central area, with the Shiite kalima around. Used only at Qazvin.

F. Obverse, exactly as type A. Reverse, the ruler's evocation, together with the usual benedication, khalad Allah mulkahu, "May God perpetuate his kingship.

In addition, there are several local types used by mints at Ganja, Iravan, Nukhwi, Shemakhi, and Tiflis by local rulers. These are listed in Caucasia, under Russia.

Shahrukh, 3rd Reign

AH1168-1210 / 1755-1796AD

Types for this ruler's 3rd Reign:

E. As B, but a different couplet. Struck only at Mashhad. Sekkeh zad az sa'y-e nader-e thani sahebqeran. Kalb-e soltan-e Khorasan Shahrokh shah-e jahan.

"The dog of the sultan of Khorasan (i.e., the 8th Imam), Shahrukh, king of the world, has struck coin, by the efforts of Nadir, the second Sahebqiran." However, the puns and word plays enable various nuances of meaning that cannot be captured in translation.

F. Unread couplet obverse. Reverse as type E.

Agha Muhammad Khan
AH1193-1211 / 1779-97AD

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse couplet. Reverse, mint and date, normally with the mint epithet.

Be-zar sekkeh az meymanat zad qaza Be-nam-e 'Ali ebn-e Musa or-Reza.

"Fate has auspiciously struck coin in precious metal, in the name of Ali, son of Musa, Reza (i.e., the 8th Imam)." (Same couplet as type A of Muhammad Hasan Khan Qajar)

B1. Obverse couplet. Reverse, mint, date, usually the epithet, and the evocation Ya Mohammad, "O Muhammad".

Be-zar o sim ta neshan bashad Sekke-ye Saheb oz-Zaman bashad.

"So long as there shall be a stamp upon gold and silver, there shall be coin of the Master of Time".

B2. As B1, but variant of the couplet:

Ta zar o sim-ra neshan bashad Sekke-ye Saheb oz-Zaman bashad.

"So long as gold and silver shall have a design, there shall be coin of the Master of Time".

B3. As B1, but variant of the couplet:

Ta zar o sim dar jahan bashad Sekke-ye Saheb oz-Zaman bashad.

"So long as there is gold and silver in the world, there shall be coin of the Master of Time".

C. Obverse couplet. Reverse, mint, date, epithet and evocation as on type B.

Shod aftab o mah zar o sim dar jahan Az sekke-ye Emam be-haqq Saheb oz-Zaman.

"The sun and moon have become gold and silver throughout the world, from the coin of the Imam, indeed the Master of Time." This is the same couplet found on most types of Karim Khan Zand and the later Zands. The type is distinguished by the evocation.

C*. As type C, but without the evocation. These are coins of the rebellion of Ahmad Khan Donboli in Azerbayjan, but are traditionally, though somewhat incorrectly, assigned to Agha Muhammad Khan.

D. Obverse, the Shiite formula. Reverse, mint, date, epithet and evocation as on type B.

E. Obverse, within ornate border, the evocation Ya Ali Vali Allah, "O Ali, Friend of God". Reverse, mint and date (no epithet), with evocation, Ya Mohammad.

NOTE: The coinage of Agha Muhammad Khan is not well understood. The types are clear, but the denominations are tentative. In all probability, there were multiple monetary systems in use in different parts of Iran during his turbulent reign. However, there is at present no clear correlation between type, mint, and denomination. The silver coinage is particularly confused. The schema offered here is tentative. The rupi is believed to have been equal to 10 shahis, with a weight of 11.5 grams. It was gradually replaced after AH1204 with a riyal, weighing 12.67 grams, but reckoned as 20 shahis, thus incorporating a significant devaluation of the shahi. A large number of coins, particularly in gold, have been published without mention of type or denomination. These have been disregarded in the following listings, which are thus quite incomplete.

Fath Ali Shah
AH1212-1250 / 1797-1834AD

Fath Ali Khan succeeded his uncle, Agha Muhammad Shah, upon the latter's death on 16 June 1797, striking coins with the nickname Baba Khan. His formal enthronement took place three months later, on 15 or 16 September 1797, at which time he received the name Fath Ali Shah. His coin types are distinguished both by inscription, calligraphy, and weight standard. As the silver and gold weight standards were not altered simultaneously, the type sequences for silver and gold differ.
Note: All coins of this and succeeding reigns for hammered coinage bear the mint & date on the reverse, the mint usually with its distinguishing epithet. Only the obverse is noted in the type descriptions.
Coinage Standards of Fath Ali Shah
NOTE: Prices for silver coins are for average strikes, with some weakness or unevenness. Poorly struck coins are worth less, well-struck and well-centered coins can be worth from 25-100% more, depending on eye appeal and ornateness of design. Gold coins are generally better struck, but really attractive strikes or fancy designs also command a premium.
NOTE: Coins without legible date are worth about half the price of the cheapest date of the mint & type. Coins without legible mint are of little value. This and the previous note apply to coins of the later rulers Muhammad Shah and Nasir al-Din Shah as well as those of Fath Ali Shah.

Silver Types:
CO (Coronation Type). Obverse, double legend: Amadeh az Fath-e 'Ali sekke be-zar-e shahi, "From Fath Ali came the die to the royal precious metals." Standard for the rial (=1250 dinars) was 11.52 g.
A. Obverse, name of ruler with title al-sultan. Standard for the rial was 10.36 g.
B. Obverse, name of ruler with the expanded title al-sultan, ibn al-sulan, "Sultan, son of the sultan." Plain backgrounds with rather thick calligraphy. Same standard as Type A.
C. Obverse, as Type B, but with floriated backgrounds and finer calligraphy. Same standard as Types A and B.
D. Obverse, as Type C, similar backgrounds & calligraphy, but standard reduced to 9.21 g for the rial.
E. Obverse, new form of the royal protocol, Fath 'Ali Shah Qajar Khusro-ve Sahebqeran, "Fath Ali Shah Qajar, Caesar, Sahebqeran (i.e., possessor of an auspicious conjunction)." The rial was abandoned except at Mashhad and replaced by a qiran (kran) of 1000 dinars weighing 6.91 g.

F. Obverse, as Type E but the final portion of the protocol is Khosro-ve Keshvarsetan, "World-conquering Caesar." Same standard as type, with which it is contemporary (1246-1250). All Type F silver coins are probably mules with obverse dies intended for the gold.There are also a number of local types, which have not been assigned type letters and are listed following the regular imperial types.

Gold Types:

R. Same as silver Type CO (Coronation Type). Standard for the toman (=10,000 dinars) is 6.14 g.

S. Inscriptions as Type A (Type S.1) or as Type B (Type S.2) same standard as Type R.

T. Inscriptions as Type B (Type T.1) or as Type C (Type T.2), based on a toman of 5.76 g. (No examples of Type T.2 with mint & date are confirmed at the present time.)

U. Inscriptions as Type C, based on a toman of 5.37 g.

V. Inscriptions as Type C, based on a toman of 4.80 g.

W. Inscriptions as Type C or D, based on a toman of 4.61 g (one mithqal weight).

X. Inscriptions as Type E (sahebqeran type), based on a toman of 4.61 g.

Y. Inscriptions as Type F (keshvarsetan type), based on a toman of 3.45 g.

Baba Khan

AH1211-1212 / 1797 -1798AD

(Fath ali before coronation.)

Baba Khan was the name used by Fath'ali Shah for about 3 months prior to his official julus, or coronation. Mint premiums as for Fath'ali Shah. All known coins of Baba Khan are dated AH1212. They fall into two standards, the first based on a Rupee of 60 Nokhod (= 11.50 g), the second on a Riyal of 54 Nokhod (= 10.40 g).

Types for this reign:

A. Obverse name and benediction, al-mulk lillah al-Sultan Baba Khan ("the kingdom is God's, Sultan Baba Khan"). Reverse, mint (sometimes with epithet) & date, with pious evocation above, al-izzat lillah, "God's is the glory".

B. Similar to type A, but without the pious evocation above the reverse. Sometimes undated. Type B coins almost always have the mint with its epithet.

C. Obverse, the Shiite formula. Reverse, mint, usually with epithet, and date. Above, in smaller letters, Baba

The Republic of Iraq, historically known as Mesopotamia, is located in the Near East and is bordered by Kuwait, Iran, Turkey, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. It has area of 167,925 sq. mi. (434,920 sq. km.) and a population of 14 million. Capital: Baghdad. The economy of Iraq is based on agriculture and petroleum. Crude oil accounted for 94 percent of the exports before the war with Iran began in 1980.

Mesopotamia was the site of a number of flourishing civilizations of antiquity - Sumeria, Assyria, Babylonia, Parthia, Persia and the Biblical cities of Ur, Ninevehand and Babylon. Desired because of its favored location, which embraced the fertile alluvial plains of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, Mesopotamia - 'land between the rivers'- was conquered by Cyrus the Great of Persia, Alexander of Macedonia and by Arabs who made the legendary city of Baghdad the capital of the ruling caliphate. Suleiman the Magnificent conquered Mesopotamia for Turkey in1534, and it formed part of the Ottoman Empire until 1623, and from 1638 to 1917. Great Britain, given a League of Nations mandate over the territory in 1920, recognized Iraq as a kingdom in 1922. Iraq became an independent constitutional monarchy presided over by the Hashemite family, direct descendants of the prophet Mohammed, in 1932. In 1958, the army-led revolution of July 14 overthrew the monarchy and proclaimed a republic.

Ireland, the island located in the Atlantic Ocean west of Great Britain, was settled by a race of tall, red-haired Celts from Gaul about 400 BC. They assimilated the native Erainn and Picts and established a Gaelic civilization. After the arrival of St. Patrick in 432 AD, Ireland evolved into a center of Latin learning, which sent missionaries to Europe and possibly North America. In 1154, Pope Adrian IV gave all of Ireland to English King Henry II to administer as a Papal fief. Because of the enactment of anti-Catholic laws and the awarding of vast tracts of Irish land to Protestant absentee landowners, English control did not become reasonably absolute until 1800 when England and Ireland became the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland". Religious freedom was restored to the Irish in 1829, but agitation for political autonomy continued until the Irish Free State was established as a Dominion on Dec. 6, 1921 while Northern Ireland remained under the British rule.

ISLE de BOURBON

Isles de France et de Bourbon, (later called Mauritius and Reunion) are located in the Indian Ocean about 500 miles east of Madagascar, were administered by France as a single colony. They utilized a common currency issue. Ownership of the isle passed to Great Britain in 1814. Isle de Bourbon, renamed Reunion in 1793, remained a French possession and is now an Overseas Department.

ISLE OF MAN

The Isle of Man, a dependency of the British Crown located in the Irish Sea equidistant from Ireland, Scotland and England, has an area of 227 sq. mi. (588 sq. km.) and a population of 68,000. Capital: Douglas. Agriculture, dairy farming, fishing and tourism are the chief industries.

The prevalence of prehistoric artifacts and monuments on the island give evidence that its' mild, almost sub-tropical climate was enjoyed by mankind before the dawn of history. Vikings came to the Isle of Man during the 9th century and remained until ejected by the Scottish in 1266. The island came under the protection of the British Crown in 1288, and in 1406 was granted, in perpetuity, to the earls of Derby, from whom it was inherited, 1736, by the Duke of Atholl. The British Crown purchased the rights and title in 1765; the remaining privileges of the Atholl family were transferred to the crown in 1829. The Isle of Man is ruled by its own legislative council and the House of Keys, one of the oldest legislative assemblies in the world. Acts of Parliament passed in London do not affect the island unless it is specifically mentioned.

CAGLIARI

The ancient city of Calaris, founded by the Phoenicians about 540 BC on the south coast of Sardinia, was devastated by the Muslims during the period of their conquests. In 1323, Jaime II of Aragon (1291-1327) reconquered the island and began a long period of Spanish rule. Cagliari passed to the control of Savoy in 1720.

CASALE

Marquisate and Duchy

Of very ancient origin, the city of Casale, 40 miles (67 kilometers) southwest of Milan, became the capital of Monferrat, a marquisate erected in 967 by Emperor Otto I (936-73). The first ruling dynasty of the Aleramidi died out in 1305 and Casale passed to the Paleologi, which in turn became extinct in the male line in 1533. The marchese was raised to the rank of Prince of the Empire in 1464. Emperor Carlo V (1516-56) assigned the succession of Casale to the Gonzaga Duke of Mantua (which see), who married the daughter of the last Paleologo marchese. Austrian and Spanish forces besieged the French defenders in the city from 1628 to 1630, resulting in several issues of obsidional coinage. When a later Gonzaga ruler was accused of a felony in 1703, Emperor Leopold I (1658-1705) transferred Casale to Savoy, an act which was finalized as a part of the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

CASTIGLIONE DEI GATTI

Provincial Town

More properly, the ancient Castiglione dei Pepoli, named for the illustrious family of the Pepoli, the town is located some 25 miles (41 kilometers) south-southwest of Bologna. Although the Pepoli controlled local affairs from at least the early 14th century, the lord of the town was only formally invested by Emperor Carlo IV in 1369. Emperor Leopold I reconfirmed the concession and title of count in 1700.

CISALPINE REPUBLIC

Transpadane Republic, a revolutionary state founded in northern Italy by Napoleon, came into being at Milan, Lombardy, in July 1797. It was subsequently enlarged by the addition of the Cispadine Republic and territory from the Venetian hinterlands and the Swiss Cantons of the Valtellina. It collapsed upon the conquest of Italy by an Austro-Russian army, but was restored by Napoleon in 1800.

GENOA

A seaport in Liguria, Genoa was a dominant republic and colonial power in the Middle Ages. In 1798 Napoleon remodeled it into the Ligurian Republic, and in 1805 it was incorporated in the Kingdom of Napoleon. Following a brief restoration of the republic, it was absorbed by the Kingdom of Sardinia in 1815.

Görz, Goricia

The town of Gorizia is located in northeastern Italy near the border with present-day Slovenia and is the capital of the province of Gorizia. The town was first mentioned in an imperial document of 1001 and the first known count was Meinhard, from a Bavarian noble family, in 1127. The fortunes of the town and county grew and declined, as did the extent of its territory, as Gorizia was a nexus of rivalry between the Republic of Venice and the Holy Roman Empire's Austrian lands. The last count of the Meinhardiner line died in 1500 and, by a contract of inheritance, the countship fell to the Habsburgs. From that year until 1754, Gorizia was an imperial state of the Empire, ruled by members of the imperial family and included the former Venetian fortress of Gradisca from 1511. In 1647, Gradisca was made a separate countship until it was reunited in 1754 to create the princely countship of Gorizia and Gradisca. The countship went back and forth between Austrian and French control during the period of the Napoleonic Wars, after the conclusion of which it was returned to the Habsburgs. As part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, Gorizia underwent further changes of status in times of imperial reorganization during the 19th century. Following the end of World War I, Gorizia was annexed by Italy, was under German administration during part of World War II, then held by Yugolsav partisans until 1947, when it was incorporated into Italy once again.

GUASTALLA

Town and Duchy

Located on the south side of the River Po, some 16 miles (26 kilometers) south-southwest of Mantua, Guastalla was controlled by the Visconti and then the Torelli families during the late Middle Ages. The town and environs were ceded to the Gonzagas of Mantua in 1539, who were then invested as counts by Emperor Carlo V (1519-56). In 1557, the count received the mint right and later was raised to the rank of duke in 1621. At the death of Ferrante III in 1678, the Gonzaga duke of Mantua took possession of Guastalla until it was restored to the branch line of the family in 1692. Upon the death of the last of the line in 1746, Emperor Francesco I transferred Guastalla to the duke of Parma. The duchy was annexed to the Kingdom of Italy during the Napoleonic Era. In 1847, it passed to Modena and became part of modern Italy in 1859.

LUCCA

Luca, Lucensis
Lucca and Piombino

A town in Tuscany and the residence of a marquis, was nominally a fief but managed to maintain a de facto independence until awarded by Napoleon to his sister Elisa in 1805. In 1814 it was occupied by the Neapolitans, from 1817 to 1847 it was a duchy of the queen of Etruria, after which it became a division of Tuscany.

MANTUA

Mantova
Marquisate and Duchy

Originally of Etruscan foundation, Mantua is situated about 22 miles (37 kilometers) south-southwest of Verona and 36 miles (60 kilometers) east of Cremona. The city was famous in antiquity as the birthplace of Virgil and was made part of the kingdom of the Lombards in 601. Charlemagne made Mantua the seat of a countship, which was combined with the office of the local bishop by the later 9th century. Secular counts ruled Mantua again until the hereditary line died out in 1115 and Mantua became a republic. Elected administrators continually fell under imperial influence and the city was contested by the rival factions of Guelfs and Ghibellines. The family of Bonaccolsi controlled affairs in Mantua for about half a century before they were dispossessed by Luigi Gonzaga in 1328. He founded the dynasty that would rule Mantua and its considerable territory until the early 18th century.

At first, the Gonzagas were content with the title of captain, but the head of the family was named Vicar of the Empire in 1365. Mantua was raised to the status of Marquisate in 1432, but in 1530 the marchese was made duke. The city was sacked by imperial forces in 1630 and during the War of the Spanish Succession. The last duke was forced to allow French troops to occupy Mantua in 1703. The French left Italy in 1707 and the emperor declared the action by the duke to have allowed them entrance earlier as a felony. Invoking his right after the death of the last duke in 1708, the emperor claimed the fief reverted to the crown. It remained an imperial possession until Napoleon besieged and captured the city in 1797. The city was besieged again in 1799 by Austrian and Russian forces, who succeeded in retaking it. Mantua was then returned to Austria in 1814. During the general insurrection against Austrian rule in northern Italy in 1848, the army of Sardinia-Piedmont under King Carlo Alberto attempted to besiege Mantua. The Austrian army was led by the very able General Radetzky and successfully resisted the Italians. Coins struck in Mantua during the siege have GM on them, most probably referring to the Guarnigione (garrison) of Mantual. The city eventually became part of united Italy in 1866.

The Gonzagas followed the unusual practice of giving themselves numbers as the first, second, third, etc. marchese, then duke. The numbers are found on most of their coins in the form of Roman numerals and begin over again at 'I' when the marchese became the first duke.

MILAN

(Milano)
Duchy

The principal city in northern Italy and the second largest city of the modern republic, Milan is located in Lombardy, south of the foothills of the Alps. It is of ancient Gaulic tribal foundation, conquered by Rome in 222 BC and named Mediolanum. Sacked by Attila in 452 and destroyed by the Goths in 539, the city belonged to the Kingdom of the Lombards after being rebuilt and later, belonged to the Germanic Empire. Various families ruled the city in the later Middle Ages and it was also a republic for periods in the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries. The Visconti family became Lords of Milan in the early 14th century and the form of government was changed from elective to hereditary, the lord being raised to the rank of duke in 1395. In 1450, Francesco I Sforza inherited the duchy through marriage to the Visconti heiress and the Sforza's began to enhance the power and prestige of Milan. The city became a pawn in the power struggles between France and the Habsburgs, passing to the control of Spain in 1535, then to Austria in 1740. Conquered by France in 1796, Milan formed part of the Cisalpine Republic (see) from 1797, then the Italian Republic in 1802 and of the Kingdom of Italy from 1805 until 1814. In the latter year, Milan was ceded to Austria and became part of Lombardy-Venetia. In 1859, the city and territory was annexed to Sardinia, becoming part of united Italy.

MIRANDOLA

City, Lordship, Principality, Duchy

The city of Mirandola is located in the region of Emilia-Romagna, 18 miles (30 kilometers) north-northeast of Modena and 27 miles (45 kilometers) northwest of Bologna. It was originally a possession of the monastery of Nonantola (near Modena) and passed to Bonifacio, Marchese of Tuscany. The lordship of Mirandola was eventually divided by several local families and then sold to Modena in 1267. The Pico family came to exercise the most influence on the town when Francesco Pico was made imperial vicar in 1311. The fortunes of the family continued to grow from that time as the lord was made count of nearby Concordia in 1432, raised to marchese of Concordia and prince of Mirandola in 1596, then duke in 1617. When Emperor Massimiliano I *1493-1519) formally invested Gianfrancesco II with the title of marchese in 1515, he also granted to him the mint right. The Pico family retained Mirandola as an imperial fief until 1708. During the War of the Spanish Succession, Duke Francesco Maria sided with France. Emperor Carlo VI declared him a traitor to the Empire, stripped him of his titles and sold Mirandola and Concordia to the House of Este in 1710. Francesco Maria died in exile in Spain in 1747.

RULER - Pico Dynasty

Francesco Maria, 1691-1708 (died 1747)

ARMS

(1) checkerboard (earliest)

(2) two-fold, divided horizontally by bar with sitting bird in center, upper half, an eagle with rampant lions at left and right, lower, checkerboard

Later arms became more elaborate and manifold as the Pico family added to their domains and titles.

MODENA

Mutina

The ancient Mutina is a territorial division of Italy fronting on the Adriatic Sea between Venetia and Marches which became Roman in 215-212 B.C. Ravaged by Attila and Lombard attacks, it was rebuilt in the 9th century. Obizzo d'Este became its lord in 1288 and it was constituted a duchy in favor of Borso d'Este in 1452. Modena was included in the Napoleonic complex from 1796 to 1813, after which it was governed by the House of Austria-Este. Modena began coining in the 13th century and ceased in 1796.

NAPLES

The kingdom of Naples came into being in 1282 when the Kingdom of Sicily was divided and continued in prominence in southern Italy until again unified with Sicily as Naples & Sicily in 1816. The city of Naples served as capital from 1282 until union with Sicily in 1815 under the Congress of Vienna, when it became the capital of the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies, as Naples & Sicily was known until Italian unification in 1861.

Naples fell under French rule for a brief period from 1501-03, followed by Spanish rule ending in 1714 with the War of Spanish Succession. The Austrian Empire ruled Naples until 1738 when the city reverted to Spain under the Treaty of Vienna and continued under Spanish Bourbon rulers for the remainder of the century.

Surviving the bubonic plague in 1656 and a cholera epidemic in 1884, Naples has remained a vibrant city and center of commerce and the arts for hundreds of years.

PAPAL STATES

During many centuries prior to the formation of the unified Kingdom of Italy, when Italy was divided into numerous independent papal and ducal states, the Popes held temporal sovereignty over an area in central Italy comprising some 17,000 sq. mi. (44,030 sq. km.) including the city of Rome. At the time of the general unification of Italy under the Kingdom of Sardinia, 1861, the papal dominions beyond Rome were acquired by that kingdom diminishing the Pope's sovereignty to Rome and its environs. In 1870, while France's opposition to papal dispossession was neutralized by its war with Prussia, the Italian army seized weakly defended Rome and made it the capital of Italy, thereby abrogating the last vestige of papal temporal power. In 1871, the Italian Parliament enacted the Law of Guarantees, which guaranteed a special status for the Vatican area, and spiritual freedom and a generous income for the Pope. Pope Pius IX and his successors adamantly refused to acknowledge the validity of these laws and voluntarily "imprisoned" themselves in the Vatican. The impasse between State and Church lasted until the signing of the Lateran Treaty, Feb. 11, 1929, by which Italy recognized the sovereignty and independence of the new Vatican City state.

PAPAL STATES

The 21 Papal States – City Issuers spanned the Papal states from one end to the other. Most of the cities had been the holy see for hundreds of years. Many of them housed religious architecture and relics that were a veritable history of the church. Many had strong local families that helped administrate the city and occasionally opposed the Papal authority. Most of these cities stayed in the Papal states until 1860 when Papal territories began to crumble due to the move for unification of all Italy.

PIACENZA

Placentia
Placentia

The city of Piacenza located in northern Italy some 35 miles (60 kilometers) southeast of Milan and about halfway between the latter and Parma, is the present0day capital of the province of the same name. The site of Piacenza was a former Etruscan town at which the Romans founded, along with Cremona, a colony in May 218 BC. The Latin name of the place is Placentia, meaning "pleasant abode." The city faced many hardships over the centuries of Roman rule, the period of late antiquity and the early Middle Ages. During the High Middle Ages, Piacenza became an important center on the trade routes of northern Italy. From 1126, the city was a free commune and an important member of the Lombard League. Several powerful families, the Scotti and Pallaricini among them, contended for power during the late 13th and early 14th centuries until the capture of the city by by the Visconti of Milan in 1313. They held the city until 1447, when it became a possession of the Sforza dukes until 1499. From then until 1512, Piacenza was ruled by France, then briefly as part of the Papal States under Leo X (1513-21). In 1545, Piacenza and its territory formed part of the new duchy of Parma and Piacenza, ruled by the Farnese family. When the capital of the duchy was transferred to Parma in the late 16th century, Piacenza underwent a long period of decline and devastation. It passed to Parma in 1731, to the Habsburgs in 1735, briefly to Sardinia-Piedmont in 1744-45, then again to Parma under the Borbone dynasty to 1848. When Napoleon conquered much of Italy, Piacenza was annexed to his empire in 1802. By a plebiscite held in 1848, Piacenza voted overwhelmingly to join Sardinia-Piedmont and was henceforth known as the "First-born of the Unification of Italy." Note that some issues in the name of Alessandro were struck for years after his death in 1592.

SAN GEORGIO

San Giorgio, in the province of Reggio, had been a feudal fief of the Spanish kings. In 1731 Giovanni Domenico, marchese of San Giorgio and Polistina, was made a prince of the Empire by Charles VI with permission to strike coins. He and his son each struck scudos for a single year at the Vienna mint.

SARDINIA

Sardinia is an island located in the Mediterranean Sea, west of the southern Italian peninsula, 9,301 sq. mi.; population 1,645,192. Along with some minor islands, it constitutes an autonomous region of Italy separated on the north from Corsica, France by the Strait of Bonifacio.

Settled by Phoenicians and Greeks before it came under control of Carthage about 600 BC; taken by the Romans in 238 BC; part of the Vandal Kingdom during the 5th century; re-conquered by the Byzantine Empire in 533 AD. From the 8th century, it was frequently raided by Muslims, but that threat was eliminated by Pisa in 1016 as the object of a competitor's bet. The Genoese and Pisans were driven out by the Aragonese during the 14th-15th centuries, remaining under Spanish rule until 1708; held by Austria 1708-17, regained by the Spanish in 1717 until it was finally ceded to Savoy in 1720 in exchange for Sicily.

The combined territories of Savoy (Piedmont) and Sardinia were known henceforth as the Kingdom of Sardinia or Sardinia-Piedmont. For coinage of Sardinia prior to 1720, see Cagliari. As a result of Napoleon's invasion of Italy and his restructuring of the states in various regions, Carlo Emanuele IV abdicated in favor of his brother, Vittorio Emanuele I in 1802. Separate coinages were struck for the island of Sardinia and the Piedmontese mainland possessions. In 1816, the coinage system was reformed by the introduction of decimalization. As a result of the political upheavals of the 1850s in Italy, Vittorio Emanuele II was elected king of united Italy in 1859 and assumed the title in 1861.

SAVOY

(Savoia)

The territory of Savoy encompassed the northwestern corner of Italy and parts of southeastern France, although the extent of its borders fluctuated over the centuries. Savoy was part of the Kingdom of Arles until 1032, when a son of a count of Bellay gained a measure of independence with the title Count of Aosta-Maurienne. His son, Oddone (1056-60), is recognized as the first ruler of the House of Savoy, but it was not until 1125 that the title became Count of the Empire. During the next few centuries, Savoy expanded to include most of the territory south of Lake Geneva (now in Switzerland) and gained Piedmont, with its capital of Torino (Turin). The count was raised to the rank of Prince of the Empire in 1310 and became Duke of Savoy in 1416.

Savoy was almost constantly caught up in conflicts between the various powers of Europe - the Empire, France and Spain. During 1533 to 1536, Savoy lost consecutively Vaud, Geneva, Valais, Chablais and Gex, then suffered French occupation until 1559. Montferrat was partly acquired in 1631, with the rest following in 1708. The Countship of Desana (see) also became part of the duchy in 1676. During the war year of 1713, Savoy conquered a number of fortresses along the French frontier and was given Sicily in reward. That island was exchanged with Austria for Sardinia in 1720 and all the holdings of the House of Savoy became the Kingdom of Sardinia (see), also called Sardinia-Piedmont.

SICILY

Sicily lies off the southwestern tip of mainland Italy and is the largest island in the Mediterranean Sea. It has been inhabited for millennia, early on by tribal peoples form various places around the Mediterranean in prehistoric times, followed by Elymians from the Aegean Sea and Phoenicians in the early historical period. Greek colonists began settling in Sicily around 750 BC and their most important urban center was Syracuse. Carthage also founded colonies in the western part of the island and clashes between those enclaves and the Greek area led to the series of conflicts known as the Punic Wars. The Roman Republic eventually intervened and upon defeating Carthage, annexed Sicily as the first Roman province outside of mainland Italy. The history of the island followed that of the Roman Republic and subsequent Empire, falling victim to barbarian invasions as the latter disintegrated. As the Byzantine Empire succeeded the Roman, Sicily came under a new threat in the rise of Islam in North Africa. The Muslim conquest of Sicily extended over more than a century as one town or city after another fell during the 9th and 10th centuries. This lasted until the second half of the 11th century, when Normans from northern Europe, who had gained a foothold in southern Italy, eventually conquered the island, culminating in the capture of Palermo in 1072. The Normans established the Kingdom of Sicilly and the island was ruled from that time on by a succession of European dynasties. The Spanish gained control of the island and the southern half of Italy by the 15th century and in the 18th century, a branch of the Bourbon dynasty ruled in both Sicily and Naples (see), usually as separate entities. After the Napoleonic Wars, Sicily and Naples were permanently united in the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies from 1816 until 1860. It was annexed by Sardinia-Piedmont in the latter year and became part of united Italy in 1861.

Coinage produced solely in Naples for use there are listed under that name.

SORAGNA

A town within the province of Parma first mentioned in 712 AD. Located 17 miles (28 kilometers) northwest of Parma, Soragna came under the influence of the Lupi family of Cremona in the early 13th century. When the last male Lupi died, the title passed by marriage to the Meli family. Emperor Carlo V (1519-56) invested the successor with the name Meli-Lupi in 1530. The marchese was raised to the rank of prince in 1709 and given the mint right. Only one member of the line ever struck a single coin. The castle of Soragna is still the home of the present-day Prince of Meli-Lupi.

TRENTO

The city of Trento is located in Venezia Tridentina region, about 70 miles (115 kilometers) northwest of Venice. Emperor Conrad II, by a diploma dated May 31, 1027, conferred temporal power over Trento and its territory to Udalrico II Vescovo. The Vescovi likely received the mint right about the same time and exercised that right intermittently until the end of their rule in 1539. The last of the original line was also a cardinal and his title as such appears on his coins. There was also a short-lived imperial coinage in the first half of the 18th century, followed by one last Vescovo emission in 1776.

TUSCANY

Etruria

An Italian territorial division on the west-central peninsula, belonged to the Medici from 1530 to 1737, when it was given to Francis, duke of Lorraine. In 1800 the French established it as part of the Spanish dominions; from 1807 to 1809 it was a French department. After the fall of Napoleon it reverted to its pre-Napoleonic owner, Ferdinand III.

VASTO

Vasto was given to a member of the Avalo(s) family by Alphonso V of Aragon. Don Cesare was created a prince of the Empire by Leopold I in 1704, and was given the mint privilege. He coined only in 1706-07. In 1806, Vasto was incorporated into the Two Sicilies.

VENICE

Venezia

The "Queen of the Adriatic," Venice grew from small settlements of refugees fleeing the waves of Germanic and Hun invasions during the 5th and 6th centuries, to become one of the great maritime powers of the Mediterranean in the following centuries. Early in the 8th century, the people living around the lagoons fearing further conquests by the Lombards, elected their first duke, Ursus, who is recognized as being the first Doge of Venice. At the beginning of the 9th century, the seat of the doge was moved to the Rialto and the first ducal palace, as well as the basilica of St. Mark, were constructed. Charlemagne recognized Venice as part of Byzantine territory in Italy and the city's trading rights along the Adriatic coast. When Venice acquired the purported relics of St. Mark from Alexandria in 828, its position as one of the major city-states of the Mediterranean was firmly fixed. As the city's commercial and naval power expanded during the next few centuries, Venice gradually gained control of other coasts and islands along the Adriatic and in the Eastern Mediterranean. Venice became an imperial power as a result of the Fourth Crusade in 1204, when it financed the Latin takeover of Constantinople and, by the late 13th century, was the most prosperous city in all of Europe. When the printing press made its appearance in Germany in the mid-15th century, Venice was quick to adopt the invention and became the printing capital of Europe by 1482.

The wealth of the city's commercial and political families financed the building of magnificent palaces and churches, as well as supported much of the art of the Renaissance in that part of Italy. The city began to decline at the same time, due in part, to the Turkish conquest of the Byzantine Empire and the subsequent loss of some territories in the Eastern Mediterranean. The discovery of the New World and the all-sea route to India destroyed the city's trade monopoly. By the time Napoleon conquered Venice and deposed the last doge in 1797, thus ending eleven centuries of the Republic, the city held only a remnant of its former territory and power, but still gloried in its many exquisite buildings and canals. Napoleon signed over control of Venice to Austria in the same year, but it became a part of his Kingdom of Italy in 1805. After Napoleon's defeat in 1814, Venice was returned to Austria as part of Lombardy-Venetia. Following the Third Italian War of Independence in 1866, Venice became a permanent part of the new Kingdom of Italy.

Almost all Venetian coins were undated until the early 18th century and only from then on, dates are found more commonly on the minor coinage. However, an approximate date can be determined for many issues because of the initials of mintmasters incorporated into the design. Several mintmasters were appointed each year to oversee both the gold and silver coin production and their periods in office were only for one or two years, rarely three. A few mintmasters were appointed to second terms, but only after an interlude of several years to a decade or more. It is very unusual to find the initials of any one mintmaster on both gold and silver coins. The mintmasters for gold did not place their initials on the coinage with any regularity until the 18th century. Separate tables below list all known mintmasters and their initials for both gold and silver issues.

No attempt has been made to record the large variety of die variations among the many denominations, especially for the small minor coins. Stops in legends consist of periods, colons, rosettes, stars and other symbols, but all are represented in the following by periods only. Illustrations included will give an idea of the many types of stops. Until the early 17th century, the upper case letter A appears as a Greek letter lambda, that is, without the horizontal crossbar. It has been rendered as a normal A here.

The mint in Venice struck large quantities of coins for use in the city's many possessions and colonies. Those intended for possession in mainland Italy and widely separated overseas territories are included within the main entries for Venice itself. Coins produced for specific possessions are listed separately following the main Venetian issues. Unless noted, the mint is always understood to be located in the city of Venice itself.

MINTMASTERS' INITIALS

While many of the silver issues of Venice from 1501 to 1797 have mintmasters' initials as part of their design, the same practice was not common on the gold coinage until the 18th century, although a few examples of initials are found on gold coins of the 16th and 17th centuries.

MONETARY SYSTEM

6 Bagattini = 1 Bezzo
12 Bagattini = 1 Soldo
20 Soldi = 1 Lira
30 Soldi = 1 Lirazza
124 Soldi = 1 Ducatone = 1 Ducato
140 Soldi = 1 Scudo = 1 Tallero = 1 Zecchino
160 Soldi = 1 Scudo
2 Scudi d'Oro = 1 Doppia

WEIGHTS

Zechhino = 3.45 g
Doppia = 6.90 g

NOTE: Billon or silver coinage dies were often used to strike gold examples. Many gold denominations were struck from the same dies, and therefore, it is most important to check the weight to determine the proper denomination of any specific piece.

DIE VARIETIES

Throughout these many issues, there is great variety in the abbreviations within the legends, with various stars, dots, colons, diamonds, rosettes and other devices being utilized as separators and stops.

VENICE-DALMATIA AND ALBANIA

Venice Overseas Territories)

Dalmatia and Albania were terrritories along the Balkan coast of the Adriatic ruled by Venice from 1420 until 1797. Dalmatia was part of what is now Croatia, northwest of the city-state of Ragusa (modern Dubrovnik). Albania under Venice was located in present-day Montenegro, centered around the Bay of Cattaro (see Cattaro). Venice issued an extensive coinage for these territories during the 17th and 18th centuries.

RULER (Doge of Venice)
Alvise Mocenigo II, 1700-1709

VENICE-ISOLE DEL LEVANTE

(Venice Overseas Territories)

The word Levant, Medieval Latin meaning "the sunrise," is the name given by the Italians to the coastal regions and islands of the eastern Mediterranean Sea. The coinage specifically designates the three largest of the Ionian Islands, Corfu, Cephalonia and Zante. Corfu (Greek-Kerkyra) is located off the northwest coast of modern Greece. Venice took control of the island in 1386 and maintained possession until 1797. Cephalonia (Greek-Kefalonia) is off the west coast of Greece to the south of Corfu and was under Venetian control from 1485 to 1797. Zante (Greek-Zakynthos) is just to the south of Cephalonia, off the northwest coast of the Peloponnese. It was ruled by Venice from 1485 until 1797. The coins were struck at the Venice mint. For coinage after the end of Venetian rule in 1797, see Ionian Islands.

Jamaica, a Constitutional Monarchy within the British Commonwealth is situated in the Caribbean Sea 90 miles south of Cuba, has an area of 4,244 sq. mi. (10,990 sq. km.) and a population of 2.1 million. Capital: Kingston. The economy is founded chiefly on mining, tourism and agriculture. Aluminum, bauxite, sugar, rum and molasses are exported.

Jamaica was discovered by Columbus on May 3, 1494, and settled by Spain in 1509. The island was captured in 1655 by a British naval force under the command of Admiral William Penn, sent by Oliver Cromwell and ceded to Britain by the Treaty of Madrid, 1670. For more than 150 years, the Jamaican economy of sugar, slaves and piracy was one of the most prosperous in the new world. Dissension between the property-oriented island legislature and the home government prompted parliament to establish a crown colony government for Jamaica in 1866. From 1958 to 1961 Jamaica was a member of the West Indies Federation, withdrawing when Jamaican voters rejected the association. The colony attained independence on Aug. 6, 1962. Jamaica is a member of the Commonwealth of Nations. Elizabeth II is the Head of State, as Queen of Jamaica.

In 1758, the Jamaican Assembly authorized stamping a certain amount of Spanish milled coinage. Token coinage by merchants aided the island's monetary supply in the early19th century. Sterling coinage was introduced in Jamaica in 1825, with the additional silver three halfpence under William IV and Victoria. Certain issues of three pence of William IV and Victoria were intended for colonial use, including Jamaica, as were the last dates of three pence for George VI.

There was an extensive token and work tally coinage for Jamaica in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

A decimal standard currency system was adopted on Sept. 8, 1969.

COUNTERMARKED COINAGE

To relieve problems of light gold coinage,Jamaica legally adopted Spanish gold currency standards with a weight rating of 26.96 grams for the 8 Escudos and imposed penalties of 3 Pence per grain for the circulation of underweight gold coinage. As a result some underweight cobs were privately plugged to attain full weight and countermarked with a crocodile above the script initials GC. It is suspected that this work was done by George Clinton, an area goldsmith of this era.

Japan, a constitutional monarchy situated off the east coast of Asia, has an area of 145,809 sq. mi. (377,835 sq. km.) and a population of 123.2 million. Capital: Tokyo. Japan, one of the major industrial nations of the world, exports machinery, motor vehicles, electronics and chemicals.

Japan, founded (so legend holds) in 660 B.C. by a direct descendant of the Sun Goddess, was first brought into contact with the west by a storm-blown Portuguese ship in 1542. European traders and missionaries proceeded to enlarge the contact until the Shogunate, sensing a military threat in the foreign presence, expelled all foreigners and restricted relations with the outside world in the 17th century. After Commodore Perry's U.S. flotilla visited in 1854, Japan rapidly industrialized, abolished the Shogunate and established a parliamentary form of government, and by the end of the 19th century achieved the status of a modern economic and military power. A series of wars with China and Russia, and participation with the allies in World War I, enlarged Japan territorially but brought its interests into conflict with the Far Eastern interests of the United States, Britain and the Netherlands, causing it to align with the Axis Powers for the pursuit of World War II. After its defeat in World War II, General Douglas MacArthur forced Japan to renounce military aggression as a political instrument, and he instituted constitutional democratic self-government. Japan quickly gained a position as an economic world power.

Japanese coinage of concern to this catalog includes those issued for the Ryukyu Islands (also called Liuchu), a chain of islands extending southwest from Japan toward Taiwan (Formosa), before the Japanese government converted the islands into a prefecture under the name Okinawa. Many of the provinces of Japan issued their own definitive coinage under the Shogunate.

Until 1870

Prior to the Meiji currency reform, there was no fixed exchange rate between the various silver, gold and copper "cash" coins (which previously included Chinese "cash") in circulation. Each coin exchanged on the basis of its own merits and the prevailing market conditions. The size and weight of the copper coins and the weight and fineness of the silver and gold coins varied widely. From time to time the government would declare an official exchange rate, but this was usually ignored. For gold and silver, nominal equivalents were:
16 Shu = 4 Bu = 1 Ryo

LEGENDS

Reading top-bottom, right-left.

Kanei Tsuho

Mameitagin 'Bean' Silver and Chogin

HOEI ERA

Hoei Futatsu-ho (two characters ho, 1706-10)
Vertical stroke in era designator ho starts at second horizontal stroke and continues downward; does not extend up to top of character. There is a slight knob at each end of the bottom horizontal stroke. Compare with the era designator for the Yotsu-ho variety.

Hoei Ei-Ji (character ei, 1710)
Era designator is character ei, as used at bottom of Kanei Tsuho copper coinage.

Hoei Mitsu-ho (three characters ho, 1710-11)
Vertical stroke in era designator ho extends completely through the character from top to bottom.

Hoei Yotsu-ho (Four characters ho, 1711-12)
Era designator resembles the ho of the Futatsu-ho variety, except that a spike extends up from each end of the bottom horizontal stroke.

Shotoku-Kyoho Eras (1714-36)
As for the Keicho period pieces, there is no era designator for this period. Compare the style of the characters and designs with those of the Keicho period to distinguish between them.

Genbun Period
(Used 1736-1818)

One of the above characters is usually found on the obverse of C#8 or both sides of C#8a and C#8b. The same characters are found at both ends of chogin pieces C#9. Era designators were used continuously until the next one was introduced, regardless of intervening eras.

NOTE: Mameitagin values are for pieces weighing 5-8 grams. Pieces over 10 grams may command up to twice the values shown; pieces under 5 grams somewhat less.

Korea, 'Land of the Morning Calm', occupies a mountainous peninsula in northeast Asia bounded by Manchuria, the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan.

According to legend, the first Korean dynasty, that of the House of Tangun, ruled from 2333 B.C. to 1122 B.C. It was followed by the dynasty of Kija, a Chinese scholar, which continued until 193 B.C. and brought a high civilization to Korea. The first recorded period in the history of Korea, the period of the Three Kingdoms, lasted from 57 B.C. to 935 A.D. and achieved the first political unification of the peninsula. The Kingdom of Koryo, from which Korea derived its name, was founded in 935 and continued until 1392, when the Yi Dynasty of King Yi superseded it. Sung Kye was to last until the Japanese annexation in 1910.

At the end of the 16th century Korea was invaded by Japan, a conflict lasting seven years. From 1627 until the late 19th century, Korea shared a friendly relationship with China, but was replaced by Japan as the predominant foreign influence at the end of the Sino-Japanese War (1894-95), only to find her position threatened by Russian influence from 1896 to 1904. The Russian threat was eliminated following the Russo-Japanese War (1904-05). In 1905 Japan established a direct protectorate over Korea. On Aug. 22,1910, the last Korean ruler signed the treaty that annexed Korea to Japan as a government generalcy in the Japanese Empire. Japanese suzerainty was maintained until the end of World War II.

From 1633 to 1891 the monetary system of Korea employed cast coins with a square center hole. Fifty-two agencies were authorized to procure these coins from a lesser number of coin foundries. They exist in thousands of varieties. Seed, or mother coins, were used to make the impressions in the molds in which the regular cash coins were cast. Czarist-Russian Korea experimented with Korean coins when Alexiev of Russia, Korea's Financial Advisor, founded the First Asian Branch of the Russo-Korean Bank on March 1, 1898, and authorized the issuing of a set of new Korean coins with a crowned Russian-style quasi-eagle. British-Japanese opposition and the Russo-Japanese War operated to end the Russian coinage experiment in 1904.

TRIPOLI

Tripoli (formerly Ottoman Empire Area of antique Tripolitania, 700-146 B.C.), the capital city and chief port of the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, is situated on the North African coast on a promontory stretching out into the Mediterranean Sea. It was probably founded by Phoenicians from Sicily, but was under Roman control from 146 B.C. until 450 A.D. Invasion by Vandals and conquest by the Byzantines preceded the Arab invasions of the 11th century which, by destroying the commercial centers of Sabratha and Leptis, greatly enhanced the importance of Tripoli, an importance maintained through periods of Norman and Spanish control. Tripoli fell to the Turks, who made it the capital of the vilayet of Tripoli in 1551 and remained in their hands until 1911, when it was occupied by the Italians who made it the capital of the Italian province of Tripolitania. British forces entered the city on January 23, 1943, and administered it until establishment of the independent Kingdom of Libya on December 24, 1951.

MINT NAME

طرابلس

Tarabalus

طرابلس غرب

Tarabalus Gharb = (Tripoli West)

The appellation west serving to distinguish it from Tripoli in Lebanon, which had been an Ottoman Mint in the 16th century. On some of the copper coins, Gharb is omitted; several types come both with and without Gharb. The mint closed between the 28th and 29th year of the reign of Mahmud II.

MONETARY SYSTEM

The monetary system of Tripoli was confused and is poorly understood. Theoretically, 40 Para were equal to one Piastre, but due to the debasement of the silver coinage, later issues are virtually pure copper, though the percentage of alloy varies radically even within a given year. The 10 Para and 20 Para pieces were a little heavier than the copper Paras, with which they could easily be confounded, except that the copper Paras were generally thicker, and bear simpler inscriptions. It is not known how many of the coppers were tariffed to the debased Piastre and its fractions. Some authorities consider the copper pieces to be Beshliks (5 Para coins).

The gold coinage came in two denominations, the Zeri Mahbub (2.4-2.5 g), and the Sultani Altin (3.3-3.4 g). The ratio of the billon Piastres to the gold coins fluctuated from day to day.

The Principality of Liechtenstein, located in central Europe on the east bank of the Rhine between Austria and Switzerland, has an area of 62 sq. mi. (160 sq. km.) and a population of 27,200. Capital: Vaduz. The economy is based on agriculture and light manufacturing. Canned goods, textiles, ceramics and precision instruments are exported.

The lordships of Schellenburg and Vaduz were merged into the principality of Liechtenstein. It was a member of the Rhine Confederation from 1806 to 1815, and of the German Confederation from 1815 to 1866 when it became independent. Liechtenstein's long and close association with Austria was terminated by World War I. In 1921 it adopted the coinage of Switzerland, and two years later entered into a customs union with the Swiss, who also operated its postal and telegraph systems and represented it in international affairs. The tiny principality abolished its army in 1868 and has avoided involvement in all European wars since that time.

LIEGE

Situated along the Meuse, Ourthe, and Sambre rivers, Liege was a bishopric which geographically completely divided the Austro-Spanish Netherlands.

Traditionally founded in the 7th Century by St. Lambert, Liege became a bishopric in 721 and by 1000, under Bishop Notga, thrived as an intellectual hub of the west and center for Mosan art. Internal struggles between citizens' guilds and prince-bishops did not weaken Liege to self-destruction. She resisted two sacks by Charles the Bold during 15th Century Burgundian domination of the Netherlands and completely rebuilt the city upon his death in 1477.

Liege was bombarded by the French in 1691, and during the War of Spanish Succession was taken by the English in 1702. After the death of Johann Theodor (Bishop, 1744-1763) there were no coin issues of the bishops. The only coin issues were the Sede Vacante issues of 1763, 1771, 1784 and 1792.

Ultimately the rule of the nobles ended in 1789 by a bloodless revolution which was followed by her annexation to France in 1795 and assignment with the rest of Belgium to the Netherlands in 1815.

Since Belgium's independence in 1830, Liege is again recognized as a major river port, rail center and cosmopolitan hub for art, education and industry.

The Republic of Lithuania, southernmost of the Baltic states in east Europe, has an area of 25,174 sq. mi.(65,201 sq. km.) and a population of *3.6 million. Capital: Vilnius. The economy is based on livestock raising and manufacturing. Hogs, cattle, hides and electric motors are exported.

Lithuania emerged as a grand duchy in the 14th century. In the 15th century it was a major power of central Europe, stretching from the Baltic to the Black Sea. It was joined with Poland in 1569, but lost Smolensk, Chernigovsk, and the left bank of the river Dnepr Ukraina in 1667. Following the third partition of Poland by Austria, Prussia and Russia, 1795, Lithuania came under Russian domination and did not regain its independence until shortly before the end of World War I when it declared itself a sovereign republic on Feb. 16, 1918. In fall of 1920, Poland captured Vilna (Vilnius). The republic was occupied by Soviet troops and annexed to the U.S.S.R. in 1940. Following the German occupation of 1941-44, it was retaken by Russia and reestablished as a member republic of the Soviet Union. Western countries, including the United States, did not recognize Lithuania's incorporation into the Soviet Union.

Lithuania declared its independence March 11, 1990 and it was recognized by the United States on Sept. 2, 1991, followed by the Soviet government in Moscow on Sept. 6. They were seated in the UN General Assembly on Sept. 17, 1991.

A former province of Russia, now partly in Latvia and partly in southern Estonia.

The division of Livonia left the northern part governed by Russia while the southern part fell under the dominion of Poland. In 1621 it was the theatre of a war between Sweden and Poland. Being conquered by Sweden, Livonia enjoyed 25 years of milder rule.

A historic region at the eastern end of the Baltic Sea now known as Latvia and Estonia. It was originally inhabited by the Chudes, the Livs, the Narora, Letgola, Semigallians and Kors. The Germans first penetrated into Livonia in the 11th Century. Christianity was introduced by the Livonian Knights known as the Brothers of the Sword. They came under Polish rule in 1561, passed to Sweden in 1629 and was made part of Russia in 1721 following the Great Northern War, 1700-1721.

This special issue of coins was made following the issuing of the ukase of October 25, 1756 by Elizabeth, Czarina of all the Russias. The issue was to last only until the following year. For later coinage see Estonia and Latvia.

The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg is located in western Europe between Belgium, Germany and France, has an area of 1,103 sq. mi. (2,586 sq. km.) and a population of 377,100. Capital: Luxembourg. The economy is based on steel.

Founded about 963, Luxembourg was a prominent country of the Holy Roman Empire; one of its sovereigns became Holy Roman Emperor as Henry VII, 1308. After being made a duchy by Emperor Charles IV, 1354, Luxembourg passed under the domination of Burgundy, Spain, Austria and France, 1443-1815, regaining autonomy under the Treaty of Vienna, 1815, as a grand duchy in union with the Netherlands, though ostensibly a member of the German Confederation. When Belgium seceded from the Kingdom of the Netherlands, 1830, Luxembourg was forced to cede its greater western section to Belgium. The tiny duchy left the German Confederation in 1867 when the Treaty of London recognized it as an independent state and guaranteed its perpetual neutrality. Luxembourg was occupied by Germany and liberated by American troops in both World Wars.

PENANG

Pulu Penang-Prince of Wales Island

An island off the west coast of Malaysia. Ceded to the British in 1791 by the sultan of Kedah and was the first British settlement in Malaya. Also known as Pulu Penang and Prince of Wales Island - which title it retained until1867.

The currency system depended on the Spanish dollar divided into 100 pice (or cents) until 1826 when 48 pice were deemed the equivalent of one Bengal rupee until1830. The coins are considered in three groups:

(a) The Company bale mark series, consisting of copper1/10, 1/2 and 1 pice of 1786/1787, and silver tenth, quarter and half dollars, dated 1788;

(b) Company coat of arms issues in copper between1810 and 1828 in denominations of 1/2, 1 and double pice pieces; and

(c) Tin issues of local mintage pice pieces of 1800-1809, which are extremely rare.

The Republic of Maldives, an archipelago of 2,000 coral islets in the northern Indian Ocean 417 miles (671 km.) west of Ceylon, has an area of 116 sq. mi. (298 sq. km.)and a population of 189,000. Capital: Male. Fishing employs 95 % of the male work force. Dried fish, copra and coir yarn are exported.

The Maldive Islands were visited by Arab traders and converted to Islam in 1153. After being harassed in the16th and 17th centuries by Mopla pirates of the Malabar coast and Portuguese raiders, the Maldivians voluntarily placed themselves under the suzerainty of Ceylon. In 1887 the islands became an internally self-governing British protectorate and a nominal dependency of Ceylon. Traditionally a sultanate, the Maldives became a republic in 1953 but restored the sultanate in 1954. The Sultanate of the Maldive Islands attained complete internal and external autonomy on July 26, 1965, and on Nov. 11,1968, again became a republic.

Mahle (Male)

MONETARY SYSTEM

100 Lari = 1 Rupee (Rufiyaa)

NOTE: The metrology of the early coinage is problematical. There seem to have been three denominations: a double Larin of 8-10 g, a Larin of approximately 4.8 g, and a half Larin that varied from 1.1 to 2.4 g, known as the Bodu Larin, Larin and Kuda Larin, respectively. In some years probably when copper was cheap (AH1276 & 1294),the Kuda (1/2) Larin is found with weights as high as 3.5 g. During the rule of Muhammad Imad Al-Din II Al-Muzaffar Bin Muhammad (1704-1721AD) additional denominations in the form of the 1/4, 1/8 and 1/16 Larin (1.17 g, 0.55 g and 0.29 g) were introduced on an experimental basis. This experiment was not followed by later rulers with the exception of Muhammad Imad Al-Din IV (1835-1882AD) who struck some lightweight coins of about 1.1 g which can be considered 1/4 Larins.

The Order of Malta, modern successor to the Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem (the crusading Knights Hospitallers), derives its sovereignty from grants of extraterritoriality by Italy (1928) and the Vatican City (1953), and from its supranational character as a religious military order owing suzerainty to the Holy See. Its territory is confined to Palazzo Malta on Via Condotti, Villa Malta and the crest of the Aventine Hill, all in the city of Rome. The Order maintains diplomatic relations with about 35 governments, including Italy, Spain, Austria, State of Malta, Portugal, Brazil, Guatemala, Panama, Peru, Iran, Lebanon, Philippines, Liberia, Ethiopia, and several others.

The Knights Hospitallers were founded in 1099 just before the crusaders' capture of Jerusalem. Father Gerard (died 1120) was the founder and first rector of the Jerusalem hospital. The headquarters of the Order were successively at Jerusalem 1099-1187; Acre 1187-1291; Cyprus 1291-1310; Rhodes 1310-1522; Malta 1530-1798;Trieste 1798-1799; St. Petersburg 1799-1803; Catania 1803-1825; Ferrara 1826-1834; Rome 1834-Present.

COUNTERMARKED COINAGE

For over a century the two and four Tari copper coins struck during the reign of Jean-Paul Lascaris Castellar were countermarked as an expedient against the prevalent forging of these coins both in Malta and Messina.

A total of eight different countermarks were utilized. As many as seven can be found on the 2 Tari and all eight different may be encountered on the 4 Tari.

COUNTERMARKS
I. Imperial eagle in circle.
Initiated May 28, 1646.
II. Head of John the Baptist in oval.
Initiated April 19, 1662.
III. Crowned fleur-de-lis.
Initiated August 27, 1696.

For more information refer to The Coinage of the Knights in Malta by Felice Restelli and Joseph C. Sammut, 1977 by Emmanuel Said Publishers, Valettta, Malta.

NOTE: Coins are properly catalogued by the latest countermark. Obviously certain coins may lack one or more countermarks having been missed during such an extensive countermarking period. Prices for this section are based on common examples, which are likely to show less detail and tend to be cupped. The images shown here are exceptional examples and command premium prices.

The French Overseas Department of Martinique, located in the Lesser Antilles of the West Indies between Dominica and Saint Lucia, has an area of 425 sq. mi.(1,100 sq. km.) and a population of 290,000. Capital: Fort-de-France. Agriculture and tourism are the major sources of income. Bananas, sugar, and rum are exported.

Christopher Columbus discovered Martinique, probably on June 15, 1502. France took possession on June 25, 1635, and has maintained possession since that time except for three short periods of British occupation during the Napoleonic Wars. A French department since 1946, Martinique voted a reaffirmation of that status in 1958, remaining within the new French Community. Martinique was the birthplace of Napoleon's Empress Josephine, and the site of the eruption of Mt. Pelee in 1902 that claimed 40,000 lives.

FRENCH COLONY

COUNTERMARKED COINAGE

Type I - 1761-64

It is believed that circulating coins were holed in order to lower their intrinsic value below their face value thus keeping the coins from leaving the island. The heart-shaped center punches never circulated and did not have any legal tender status. Most were melted at the time of minting.

MEXICO

Mexico, located immediately south of the United States has an area of 759,529 sq. mi. (1,967,183 sq. km.) and an estimated population of 88 million. Capital: Mexico City. The economy is based on agriculture, manufacturing and mining. Oil, cotton, silver, coffee, and shrimp are exported.

Mexico was the site of highly advanced Indian civilizations 1,500 years before conquistador Hernando Cortes conquered the wealthy Aztec empire of Montezuma,1519-21, and founded a Spanish colony which lasted for nearly 300 years. During the Spanish period, Mexico, then called New Spain, stretched from Guatemala to the present states of Wyoming and California. Its' present northern boundary having been established by the secession of Texas during 1836 and the War of 1846-48 with the United States.

These two principalities have constituted the base of modern Romania. Wallachia and Moldova were established early in the 14th century. Following some wars against Hungarian kings, both principalities became independent.

For many years these principalities successfully defended themselves against attacks by foreign powers, especially the Turks. The local rulers trying to protect the country's independence had to choose between a policy of resistance and one of conciliation. In the 15th century, Wallachia and the early 16th century, Moldova signed a series of settlements with the Ottoman Empire. These bilateral treaties stipulated the unaltered maintenance of native institutions, the authority of princes in the country, respect for the Orthodox Christian faith and the interdiction of any Islamic manifestations, limitation on the presence of Turk merchants in the territory; in exchange, they paid the annual tribute and provided military assistance to the Sultan when needed.

The 16th century brought new hardship to East Central Europe, especially after the Ottoman Empire reached the peak of its power under the Sultan Suleiman I the Magnificent (1520-1566). Thus, Belgrade (1521) fell to the Turks and with the defeat of Mohacs battle in 1526, Hungary came under Ottoman rule in 1526. Under these circumstances, Turkish control over Wallachia and Moldova became increasingly burdensome. From an economic standpoint, apart from the tribute, the princes paid the many gifts and bribes necessary to obtain and keep the throne, extraordinary services and the obligation of exporting certain goods only to the Empire. The local mints have been closed. Independent action in foreign affairs was severely restricted.

One of the most remarkable exceptions was the Prince Constantin Brancoveanu (1688-1714), who tried to maintain the autonomy of Wallachia. His relations with the Ottoman Empire worsened during the Russo-Turkish war (1711), when the prince took a neutral stance in the conflict. More, as defiance, he ordered a distinct coinage under his arms. These special coins, in gold and silver, were issued in Transylvania at Alba Iulia by the mintmaster Carl Josef Hoffman in 1713. Consequently, Brancoveanu's family was taken to Istanbul in April 1714, where the prince was tortured and executed together with his four sons.

Under these circumstances, the Turks imposed the so-called Phanariot regime in Moldova and Wallachia. These Phanariot rulers were usually Orthodox members of the noble Greek families from Istanbul. Thus, the autonomous status of the principalities was formally preserved, but considerable limitations were imposed upon them.

Because of the decline of Turkish power, Russian influence became preeminent in this area, which became a battle field. Wallachia was occupied by the Russian troops between 1769-74 and 1788-91. On its behalf, Moldova fell under Tsarist occupation in 1739, 1769-74 and 1788-91, in this period together with the Hapsburgs.

During the Russo-Turkish war (1768-74) a special coinage was made for the area, also known as Sadagura coins, the first commune coins for both principalities. The Russian administrator, the Marshall Rumeanatsev has accepted as an adventurer, the Baron Gartenberg, set up a mint at Sadagura near the city of Cernauti (region of Bukovina, in the north of Moldova). For these coins and patterns, the bronze from captured Turkish cannons was used.

The treaty of Kuchuk-Kainarji (1774), which ended the Russo-Turkish war, Moldova lost its northern region, Bukovina, to Austria in 1775, after a Russo-Austro-Turkish agreement.

In 1792, Russia annexed Transnistria, a territory extended east of the Nistru River under Ottoman suzerainty, but gave its administration to the Moldavian rulers.

The Principality of Monaco, located on the Mediterranean coast nine miles from Nice, has an area of 0.58 sq. mi. (1.9 sq. km.) and a population of 26,000. Capital: Monaco-Ville. The economy is based on tourism and the manufacture of cosmetics, gourmet foods and highly specialized electronics. Monaco also derives its revenue from a tobacco monopoly and the sale of postage stamps for philatelic purpose. Gambling in Monte Carlo accounts for only a small fraction of the country's revenue.

Monaco derives its name from Monoikos', the Greek surname for Hercules, the mythological strong man who, according to legend, formed the Monacan headland during one of his twelve labors. Monaco has been ruled by the Grimaldi dynasty since 1297 - Prince Rainier III, the present and 31st monarch of Monaco, is still of that line - except for a period during the French Revolution until Napoleon's downfall when the Principality was annexed to France. Since 1865, Monaco has maintained a customs union with France which guarantees its privileged position as long as the royal line remains intact. Under the new constitution proclaimed on December 17, 1962, the Prince shares his power with an 18-member unicameral National Council.

Montserrat, a British crown colony located in the Lesser Antilles of the West Indies 27 miles (43 km.) southwest of Antigua, has an area of 38 sq. mi. (100 sq. km.) and a population of 18,500. Capital: Plymouth. The island - actually a range of volcanic peaks rising from the Caribbean - exports cotton, limes and vegetables.

Columbus discovered Montserrat in 1493 and named it after Monserrado, a mountain in Spain. It was colonized by the English in 1632 and, except for brief periods of French occupancy in 1667 and 1782-83, has remained a British possession from that time. Currency of the British Caribbean Territories (Eastern Group) was used until later when the East Caribbean States coinage was introduced. Until becoming a separate colony in 1956, Montserrat was a presidency of the Leeward Islands.

The early 19th century countermarks of a crowned 3, 4,7, 9 or 18 over M as documented by Major Pridmore have been more correctly listed under St. Bartholomew.

The Kingdom of Morocco, situated on the northwest corner of Africa, has an area of 432,620 sq. mi. (710,850 sq. km.). Capital: Rabat.

Morocco's strategic position at the gateway to western Europe has been the principal determinant of its violent, frequently unfortunate history. Time and again the fertile plain between the rugged Atlas Mountains and the sea has echoed the battle's trumpet as Phoenicians, Romans, Vandals, Visigoths, Byzantine Greeks and Islamic Arabs successively conquered and occupied the land. Modern Morocco is a remnant of an early empire formed by the Arabs at the close of the 7th century which encompassed all of northwest Africa and most of the Iberian Peninsula. During the 17th and 18th centuries, while under the control of native dynasties, it was the headquarters of the famous Sale pirates. Morocco's strategic position involved it in the competition of 19th century European powers for political influence in Africa, and resulted in the division of Morocco into French and Spanish spheres of interest which were established as protectorates in 1912. Morocco became independent on March 2, 1956, after France agreed to end its protectorate. Spain signed similar agreements on April 7 of the same year.

EARLY COINAGE

Prior to the introduction of modern machine-struck coinage in Morocco in AH1299/1882AD the coinage of the Filali Sharifs contained of a variety of primitive hammered copper and cast bronze coins as well as of crudely hammered silver and gold issues which were in circulation together with considerable quantities of foreign coins.

The cast bronze (starting with Al-Yazid in AH1204/1790AD) were produced in several denominations, multiples and fractions of the basic unit of the Falus (Felous). The expression Zelagh (Zalagh) was used for all fractions of the Falus. After the Monetary Reform of 1902AD the Mazuna (or Muzuna, Mouzuna, Mawzuna) was the standard bronze unit. The size and weights of the pre-1902AD coins vary, which sometimes makes its distinction difficult, in particular for earlier rulers. Early types are varied, with different ornamentation and designs, some undated and/or without mint name, which makes a complete presentation of all varieties impossible. Beginning in AH1208, the obverse bears the Seal of Solomon (hexagram) and the reverse includes the date and/or mint name. All cast bronzes with only ornaments or the Seal of Solomon on both sides are issues of Sulayman. The mint (if present) is in Arabic script and starting with issues of Mohammed III the date (when present) is in Western numerals. The bronze pieces were cast in "trees" and occasionally entire or partial "trees" are found in the market.

Some bronze issues of Mohammed IV with illegible dates and mints and often light in weight are considered contemporary counterfeits. The war with Spain led to a chaotic and bad economic period in Morocco, during which Dirhams have been counterfeited by silver-plating hammered copper and brass pieces with dates AH1283-89/1866-72AD of Mohammed IV.

The silver and gold coins usually have the mint name on one side and the date on the other side. The original silver unit was the "legal dirham" of 2.931 grams standard weight, changing to several lower standards depending on the economic situation. A ¼ Dirham was called Mazuna until AH1213. The gold units Dinar and beginning with Sulayman, the Benduqi (Bonduqi) had 3.52 grams standard weight.

All weights indicated in the following listings for bronze, silver and gold coins are standards weights; actual weights of coins found can differ considerably. Anonymous strikes can be assigned to individual rulers by date, design and weight standard. Prices are for specimens with clearly legible dates (if any) and mint names (if any). Illegible and defectively produced pieces are worth much less.

To have more information on Moroccan issues from AH1075-1400/1664-1980AD, refer to Corpus des Monnaies Alawites by Daniel Eustache, Rabat 1984. For professional comments and estimate of rarity for all weights standards, see A Checklist of Islamic Coins by Stephen Album, Santa Rosa 1998. Information on Mazuna-strikes of Fes of AH1320-1323/1902-1205AD can be found in Monedas de Marruecos by Sanchez-Giron Blasco, Ceuta 1980. For details of Moroccan issues from AH1297-1380/1879-1960AD, refer to Monnaies et Jetons des Colonies Francaises by Jean Lecompte, Monaco 2000. Excellent drawings of bronze coins of Morocco, from AH1184-1321/1770-1903AD, can be found in Modern Copper Coins of the Muhammadan States by W. H. Valentine, London 1911 (reprint 1969).

NOTE: Prices are for specimens with clearly legible dates and mint names (if any). Illegible, barbarous, and defectively produced pieces are worth much less. Between AH1221-36 due to the bad economic situation no Dirhams were minted.

NOTE: Falus, most issues show ornaments on both sides composed of interlacing lines in a circle/square with inscriptions around, some issues have octagonal/hexagonal designs besides inscriptions Bronze, 3.97 g, 18-24mm.

The Republic of Mozambique, a former overseas province of Portugal, stretches for 1,430 miles (2,301km.) along the southeast coast of Africa, has an area of 302,330 sq. mi. (801,590 sq. km.) and a population of 14.1 million, 99 % of whom are native Africans of the Bantu tribes. Capital: Maputo. Agriculture is the chief industry. Cashew nuts, cotton, sugar, copra and tea are exported.

Vasco de Gama explored all the coast of Mozambique in 1498 and found Arab trading posts already established along the coast. Portuguese settlement dates from the establishment of the trading post of Mozambique in 1505.Within five years Portugal absorbed all the former Arab sultanates along the east African coast. The area was organized as a colony in 1907 and became an overseas province in 1952. In Sept. of 1974, after more than a decade of guerrilla warfare with the forces of the Mozambique Liberation Front, Portugal agreed to the independence of Mozambique, effective June 25, 1975.The Socialist party, led by President Joaquim Chissano was in power until the 2nd of November, 1990 when they became a republic.

Mozambique became a member of the Commonwealth of Nations in November 1995. The President is Head of State; the Prime Minister is Head of Government.

COUNTERMARKED COINAGE

Decree of May 28, 1767

This decree stated that all crown-sized coins were to be marked with a MR monogram and a 4. There are no known specimens listed in numismatic literature that tell of examples with the 4. The MR appears almost exclusively on Spanish Colonial Pillar dollars. Occasionally it appears on cob pieces and European coins. This countermark was to circulate for a longer period than any other Mozambique countermark.

The Union of Myanmar, formerly Burma, a country of Southeast Asia fronting on the Bay of Bengal and the Andaman Sea, has an area of 261,218 sq. mi. (678,500 sq. km.) and a population of 38.8 million. Capital: Yangon (Rangoon). Myanmar is an agricultural country heavily dependent on its leading product (rice) which occupies two-thirds of the cultivated area and accounts for 40 % of the value of exports. Mineral resources are extensive, but production is low. Petroleum, lead, tin, silver, zinc, nickel cobalt, and precious stones are exported.

The first European to reach Burma, in about 1435, was Nicolo Di Conti, a Venetian merchant. During the beginning of the reign of Bodawpaya (1781-1819AD) the kingdom comprised most of the same area as it does today including Arakan which was taken over in 1784-85. The British East India Company, while unsuccessful in its1612 effort to establish posts along the Bay of Bengal, was enabled by the Anglo-Burmese Wars of 1824-86 to expand to the whole of Burma and to secure its annexation to British India. In 1937, Burma was separated from India, becoming a separate British colony with limited self-government. Burma became an independent nation outside the British Commonwealth on Jan. 4, 1948, the constitution of 1948 providing for a parliamentary democracy and the nationalization of certain industries. However, political and economic problems persisted, and on March 2, 1962, Gen. Ne Win took over the government, suspended the constitution, installed himself as chief of state, and pursued a socialistic program with nationalization of nearly all industry and trade. On Jan. 4, 1974, a new constitution adopted by referendum established Burma as a socialist republic under one-party rule. The country name was changed to Myanmar in 1989.

The coins issued by kings Mindon and Thibaw between 1852 and 1885 circulated in Upper Burma. Indian coins were current in Lower Burma, which was annexed in 1852. Burmese coins are frequently known by the equivalent Indian denominations, although their values are inscribed in Burmese units. Upper Burma was annexed in 1885 and the Burmese coinage remained in circulation until 1889,when Indian coins became current throughout Burma. Coins were again issued in the old Burmese denominations after independence in 1948, but these were replaced by decimal issues in 1952. The Chula-Sakarat (CS) dating is sometimes referred to as BE-Burmese Era and began in 638AD.

The Kingdom of Nepal, the world's only surviving Hindu kingdom, is a landlocked country occupying the southern slopes of the Himalayas. It has an area of 56,136 sq. mi. (140,800 sq. km.) and a population of 18 million. Capital: Kathmandu. Nepal has deposits of coal, copper, iron and cobalt, but they are largely unexploited. Agriculture is the principal economic activity. Rice, timber and jute are exported, with tourism being the other major foreign exchange earner.

Apart from a brief Muslim invasion in the 14th century, Nepal was able to avoid the mainstream of Northern Indian politics, due to its impregnable position in the mountains. It is therefore a unique survivor of the medieval Hindu and Buddhist culture of Northern India which was largely destroyed by the successive waves of Muslim invasions.

Prior to the late 18th century, Nepal, as we know it today, was divided among a number of small states. Unless otherwise stated, the term Nepal applies to the small fertile valley, about 4,500 ft. above sea level, in which the three main cities of Kathmandu, Patan and Bhatgaon are situated.

During the reign of King Yaksha Malla (1428-1482AD), the Nepalese kingdom, with capital at Bhatgaon, was extended northwards into Tibet, and also controlled a considerable area to the south of the hills. After Yaksha Malla's death, the Kingdom was divided among his sons, so four kingdoms were established with capitals at Bhatgaon, Patan, Kathmandu and Banepa, all situated within the small valley, less than 20 miles square. Banepa was quickly absorbed within the territory of Bhatgaon, but the other three kingdoms remained until 1769. The internecine strife between the three kings effectively stopped Nepal from becoming a major military force during this period, although with its fertile land and strategic position, it was by far the wealthiest and most powerful of the Himalayan states.

Apart from agriculture, Nepal owed its prosperity to its position on one of the easiest trade routes between the great monasteries of central Tibet, and India. Nepal made full use of this, and a trading community was set up in Lhasa during the 16th century, and Nepalese coins became the accepted currency medium in Tibet.

The seeds of discord between Nepal and Tibet were sown during the first half of the 18th century, when the Nepalese debased the coinage, and the fate of the Malla kings of Nepal was sealed when Prithvi Narayan Shah, King of the small state of Gorkha, to the west of Kathmandu, was able to gain control of the trans-himalayan trade routes during the years after 1750.

Prithvi Narayan spent several years consolidating his position in hill areas before he finally succeeded in conquering the Kathmandu Valley in 1768, where he established the Shah dynasty, and moved his capital to Kathmandu.

After Prithvi Narayan's death a period of political instability ensued which lasted until the 1840's when the Rana family reduced the monarch to a figurehead and established the post of hereditary Prime Minister. A popular revolution in 1950 toppled the Rana family and reconstituted power in the throne. In 1959 King Mahendra declared Nepal a constitutional monarchy, and in 1962 a new constitution set up a system of panchayat (village council) democracy. In 1990, following political unrest, the king's powers were reduced. The country then adopted a system of parliamentary democracy.

DATING

Nepal Samvat Era (NS)

All coins of the Malla kings of Nepal are dated in the Nepal Samvat era (NS). Year 1 NS began in 881, so to arrive at the AD date add 880 to the NS date. This era was exclusive to Nepal, except for one gold coin of Prana Narayan of Cooch Behar.

Saka Era (SE)

Up until 1888AD all coins of the Gorkha Dynasty were dated in the Saka era (SE). To convert from Saka to AD take Saka date and add 78 to arrive at the AD date. Coins dated with this era have SE before the date in the following listing.

Vikrama Samvat Era (VS)

From 1888AD most copper coins were dated in the Vikram Samvat (VS) era. To convert take VS date - 57 =AD date. Coins with this era have VS before the year in the listing. With the exception of a few gold coins struck in 1890 & 1892, silver and gold coins only changed to the VS era in 1911AD, but now this era is used for all coins struck in Nepal.

MONETARY SYSTEM

Mohar Series

In about 1640 the weight standard of the Nepalese coinage was completely changed, and it is probable that all the old tanka coins were withdrawn from circulation.

The new standard coin was the Mohar, weighing about5.4 g, or rather more than half the old tanka. The Mohar was subdivided in factors of 2, as follows:
2 Mohar (Rupee) = 10.80 g
1 Mohar = 5.40 g
1/2 Mohar = 2.70 g
1/4 Mohar (Suki) = 1.35 g
1/8 Mohar = 0.67 g
1/16 Mohar = 0.34 g
1/32 Mohar = 0.17 g
1/128 Mohar (Dam) = 0.04-0.08 g
1/512 Mohar (Jawa) = 0.01 g

The weights given above correspond to the average weight of actual specimens, rather than the theoretical weight, which has been said to be 86.4 grains, or 5.60 g.

The coinage was almost entirely of silver, with the tiny Jawa being easily the smallest coin in the world. Gold coins were struck on only one or two occasions during the Madra period, from the same dies as the silver coins, but these were probably only used for ceremonial purposes. Gold after 1777AD was struck in greater quantity.

Initially the coinage was of fine silver, in contrast to the tanka coins, which were frequently debased. During the early 18th century, however, the coins became debased, but the fineness was improved after 1753AD. The coinage was again debased in the first half of the 19th century.

Many of the mohars circulated in Tibet as well as in Nepal, and on a number of occasions coins were struck from bullion supplied by the Tibetan authorities. The smaller denominations never circulated in Tibet, but some of the mohars were cut for use as small change in Tibet.

In these listings only major changes in design have been noted. There are numerous minor varieties of ornamentation or spelling.

Initially the copper paisa was not fixed in value relative to the silver coins, and generally fluctuated in value from1/32 mohar in 1865AD to around 1/50 mohar afterc1880AD, and was fixed at that value in 1903AD.
4 Dam = 1 Paisa
2 Paisa = 1 Dyak, Adhani

NUMERALS

Nepal has used more variations of numerals on their coins than any other nation. The most common are illustrated in the numeral chart in the introduction. The chart below illustrates some variations encompassing the last four centuries.

CUT COINAGE

The Mohar, KM#259, was struck in large quantities in base metal and sent to Tibet, where it was often cut for use as small change. The full coin circulated at the value of 1.5 Sho, and it was cut into fractions of 2/3, 1/2, and 1/3, circulating at 1 Sho, 0.75 Sho and 0.5 Sho. Two methods of cutting were used, the earliest method merely used a straight line cut, whereas during the early 19th century it became normal to cut much of the center out of the fractions. The denomination was determined by the number of petals visible and how it is cut. Lucky emblems were in petals. These pieces continued to circulate until the 1920s.

CUT COINAGE

The silver Mohar, KM#472.2, was struck in large quantities and sent to Tibet, where it was often cut for use as small change. The full coin circulated at the value of 1.5 Sho, and it was cut into fractions of 2/3, 1/2, and 1/3, curculating at 1 Sho, 0.75 Sho, and 0.5 Sho. Two methods of cutting were used, the earliest method merely used a straight line cut, whereas during the early 19th century it became normal to cut much of the center out of the fractions. The denomination was determined by the number of petals visible and how it is cut with letters in the petals. These pieces continued to circulate until the 1920s.

The Kingdom of the Netherlands, a country of western Europe fronting on the North Sea and bordered by Belgium and Germany, has an area of 15,770 sq. mi. (41,500 sq. km.) and a population of 16.4 million. Capital: Amsterdam, but the seat of government is at The Hague. The economy is based on dairy farming and a variety of industrial activities. Chemicals, yarns and fabrics, and meat products are exported.

After being a part of Charlemagne's empire in the 8th and 9th centuries, the Netherlands came under control of Burgundy and the Austrian Hapsburgs, and finally was subjected to Spanish dominion in the 16th century. Led by William of Orange, the Dutch revolted against Spain in 1568. The seven northern provinces formed the Union of Utrecht and declared their independence in 1581,becoming the Republic of the United Netherlands. In the ollowing century, the Golden Age of Dutch history, the Netherlands became a great sea and colonial power, a patron of the arts and a refuge for the persecuted. The United Dutch Republic ended in 1795 when the French formed the Batavian Republic. Napoleon made his brother Louis, the King of Holland in 1806, however he abdicated in 1810 when Napoleon annexed Holland. The French were expelled in 1813, and all the provinces of Holland and Belgium were merged into the Kingdom of the United Netherlands under William I, in 1814. The Belgians withdrew in 1830 to form their own kingdom, the last substantial change in the configuration of European Netherlands. German forces invaded in 1940 as the royal family fled to England where a government-in-exile was formed. A German High Commissioner, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, was placed in command until 1945 when the arrival of Allied military forces ended the occupation.

GELDERLAND

Ducatus Gelriae

Gelder, a former duchy, was merged with the Hapsburg dominions in the Netherlands until the revolt of the Low Countries resulted in its partition. In 1579 the greater part of Gelder, comprising the quarters of Nijmegen, Arnhem, and Zutphen, became the province of Gelderland in the Dutch Republic.

GRONINGEN AND OMMELAND

The province of Groningen is located in northern Netherlands and is drained by numerous rivers and canals.

The early history of Groningen is chiefly one of conflict between the city and the surrounding districts known as the Ommelanden. The city remained loyal to the Spanish king while the surrounding area supported the revolt against Spain. After 1594 Groningen and Ommelanden were united into one republic but it was not until 1795 that they were merged into one province.

The Groningen Mint was closed in 1692. The following coins were struck at the Harderwyk Mint of Gelderland.

HOLLAND

Hollandia

Holland, a Dutch maritime province fronting on the North Sea, is the most important region of the Netherlands. It is a leader in maritime activities and in efficient agriculture. During the period of Spanish domination, Holland was the bulwark of the Protestant faith in the Netherlands and the focus of the resistance to Spanish tyranny.

MAASTRICHT

Maestricht
Traiectum Ad Mosam

Maastricht, a commune in the province of Limburg in the Netherlands, was the seat of a bishop from 382 to 721. Once part of the Frankish realm, it was overtaken by Spaniards in 1579 and then ruled by the dukes of Brabant and the prince-bishops of Liege after 1673. It was taken by the French in 1673, 1748, and 1794. The Austrian defenders under the Prince of Hesse issued an emergency coinage for Maastricht during the 1794 siege.

OVERYSSEL

Overijsel, Transisulania

Overijssel is a province in northeastern Netherlands whose name means beyond the Issel, a tributary of the Rhine. Originally known as the lordship of Oversticht it was a part of the holdings of the bishops of Utrecht. It was sold to Charles V in 1527 and made a part of the Habsburg domain. Three of its cities - Kampen, Deventer and Zwolle were important Hanseatic towns of the medieval period.
